You are controlled (ORCID). You cannot do anything, nor publish anything even mildly critical. You put your profile in public. No one is chasing you. It is a panopticon: technology watches everything. It has indeed managed to do what other goddesses attempted clumsily. We have sold our soul.

Research is about to become completely automated. ChatGPT writes the articles. The AI that implements Dimensions reads the articles. It is possible to research without reading or writing. Deleuze is right when he says that writing has died (JSON-LD). Capitalist science is profoundly illiterate.

No one remembers anymore, but at some point knowledge was published in letters. What romantic times!

I have decided to spend a DOI from Zenodo to deposit a self-referential critique of the current research system. My apologies for the audacity.
