

Was hand, foot, and mouth disease a common disease among soldiers during WWII?

Hand, foot, and mouth disease does not appear to have been a common issue among soldiers during World War II, likely due to its mild nature and focus on more serious diseases.

This summary presents the clinical bottom line. Click here to read the full evidence-based answer on AskTrip, including detailed rationale and references