

research_subject_mapper

Research Subject Mapper is a tool designed to serve the needs of multi-center studies to prevent exposure of medical record identifiers to the Data Coordination Center(DCC) while allowing the data coordination center to specify data collection periods for the research subjects. The intended usage of this tool is to combine authoritative data from a research subject data store with identifiable data at a data collection site to generate inputs for queries of an Electronic Health Record (EHR).

