

Social Work Practice to Labour Welfare: A Proposed Model of Field Work Practicum and Role of Social Worker in India

Naeem Ahmed

Abstract—Social work is a professional activity based on the approach of “helping people to help themselves” (Stroup). Social work education and practice both are based on humanitarian philosophy in which social workers try to increase the happiness of the society and to reduce the problems of society. Labour welfare is a specialised field of social work which especially focuses on welfare of organised and unorganised labour. In India labour is facing numerous problems in both organised and unorganised sectors because of ignorance, illiteracy, high rate of unemployment etc. In most of the Indian social work institutions we have this specialization with different names like Human Resource Management or Industrial Relation and Personnel Management or Industrial Relations and Labour Welfare or Industrial Social Work etc. Field work practice is integrated part of social work education curriculum in all specialised field. In India we have different field work practice models being followed in different institutions. The main objective of this paper is to prepare a universal field work practicum model in the field of labour welfare. This paper is exploratory in nature, researcher used personal experience and secondary data (model of field work practice in different institutions like Aligarh Muslim University, Pondicherry University, Central University of Karnataka, University of Lucknow, MJP Rohilkhand University Bareilly etc.) Researcher found that there is an immediate need to upgrade the curriculum or field work practice in this particular field, as more than 40 percent of total population engaged in either unorganised or organised sector (NSSO 2011-12) and they are not aware about their rights. In this way a social worker can play an important role in existing labour welfare facilities by making them aware.

Keywords—Fieldwork, labour welfare, organised labour, social work practice, unorganised labour.

I. MEANING OF SOCIAL WORK

MEANING of social work is not so easy to understand in Indian context. In India we have three meaning of social work in different connotation. Sometime it looks very easy to understand and another time so complex and dynamic, it means it is more or less impossible to give a universally accepted meaning or definition of social work in Indian perspective.

II. MEANING OF SOCIAL WORK TO A LAYMAN, SEMI-PROFESSIONAL AND PROFESSIONAL

- Layman’s view of social work is limited to the understanding of simply helping or serving others. This is an interpretation or self understood meaning of a common man about social work which is far away from the meaning of professional social work.

Naeem Ahmed is a Research Scholar at the Department of Social Work, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh, India (e-mail: naeemrafi786@gmail.com).

- Semi-professional perspective of social work is driven by people who are trained to work in professional welfare agency. They think they are working in welfare agency that’s why they have right to be called as a social worker.
- Professional meaning of social work includes person who has acquired degree in social work i.e. Master of Social Work (MSW)/Bachelor of Social Work (BSW)/M.A. (Social Work) or any other higher degree in Social Work and believe in the basic tenets of social work profession like, scientific knowledge, professional organizations, ethical values social approval etc. consider as a professional social worker [1].

III. SCIENTIFIC MEANING OR UNIVERSAL DEFINITION OF SOCIAL WORK

This universal and world wide acceptable definition is given by International Federation of Social Workers (IFSW) and International Association of School Social Work (IASSW), which focuses on practice based nature of social work, also it discusses various dimensions which play a vital role in the success of social work profession i.e. social justice, social change, social development, empowerment of people, human rights, etc. are the key components to Social work profession, which directly or indirectly focusses on the wellbeing of human being [2]. This comprehensive definition of social work includes all important aspects of human growth and development.

IV. LABOUR WELFARE

Labour welfare is a comprehensive term which includes overall welfare of labour. Different scholars explained labour welfare on different ways, according to most of the scholars’ point of view labour welfare includes health facilities, safety facilities, sitting facilities, canteen facilities, first aid facilities, washing and drying facilities, crèches room facility, housing facility, recreational facility, etc. It believes that such welfare facilities increase productivity, morale, motivational level, standard of living of workers.

V. FIELD WORK IN SOCIAL WORK

Field work is integral part of social work education [3], without Field Work knowledge social work education is not complete. Field work considers learning by doing [3]. Field Work Practicum is also a dynamic, energetic and self-motivated course of action that helps students to pertain social work knowledge, skills, values, tools, principles and techniques of social work within an organization and community [3]. Field work practice is an important curriculum part of post graduate and undergraduate level social work student to apply social work theoretical knowledge into field [3]. Field work Practicum is an empirical evaluation and assessment of students' development. In this profession students of social work are given enough opportunities to use their academic knowledge and practical experiences in the society at all levels. Almost all field work activities are done under the guidance of supervisor. Social work students take part in several activities of the society to enhance the functioning of the society at all levels, and become familiar with the many components of the social work profession and its varied roles [4].

VI. INTERRELATION BETWEEN SOCIAL WORK, LABOUR WELFARE AND FIELD WORK PRACTICE

Labour welfare is a field of social work and an important function of human resource management. Human resource management is a highly specialised field of social work. Moreover, social work education concentrate on social welfare and labour welfare is a part of social welfare. In social work education we have field work as an integrated part of social work education. To understand the functioning of human resource manager and labour welfare officer social work students go to the industries to gain practical knowledge for same purpose. In industry a social worker learn different functions of HRM, labour welfare is one of the function of HRM. To understand the concept of labour welfare we have modules of International Labour Organization (ILO) and more than 40 labour legislations enacted in India to protect the interest of workers [5]. Some of important legislations are:

1. The Industrial Disputes Act, 1947
2. The Industrial Employment (Standing Order) Act, 1946
3. The Factories Act, 1948
4. The Workmen Compensation Act, 1923
5. The Minimum Wages Act, 1948
6. The Payment of Wages Act, 1936
7. The Motor Transport Workers Act, 1961
8. The Equal Remuneration Act, 1976
9. The Payment of Bonus Act, 1965
10. The Trade Union Act, 1926
11. The Payment of Gratuity Act, 1972
12. The Child Labour (Prohibition & Regulation) Act, 1986
13. The Contract Labour (R & A) Act, 1970
14. The Maternity Benefit Act, 1961
15. The Apprentices Act, 1961
16. The Employees' State Insurance Act, 1948
17. The Employees' Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1952 [5], [6]

On the basis of these labour legislations and the conceptual framework of labour welfare of ILO here research scholar is designing a model of field work practicum in the field of labour welfare. These labour legislations are basic guidelines to improve overall social, economic, political, personal and professional condition of labour in India as well as it also will help the student to learn practical implications of labour legislations in India.

VII. PROBLEMS FACED BY SOCIAL WORK TRAINEES DURING MSW/BSW IN INDIA WHILE DOING FIELD WORK

In India there are more than 400 social work institutions which are offering BSW/MSW/MA (Social Work). When we talk about theoretical perspective of social work education it is good but practical part of social work education is not as it should be. In India we are lagging behind in the field of practical part of social work education, without field work practice it is impossible to understand social work profession properly. There are various reasons behind this poor condition of field work practice:

- Lack of planning,
- Poor quality of supervision,
- Poor model of field work practice,
- Old curriculum followed by the institutions,
- Gap between supervisor and trainee,
- Identification of place for training,
- Lack of interest,
- Lack of commitment,
- Lack of coordination,
- Low motivational level,
- Attitude and perception of trainee [3].

VIII. SPECIALIZATION PROVIDED BY SOCIAL WORK INSTITUTIONS

In most of the institutions various specializations are offered. On the basis of specialization, social work trainees are placed on the field. Some common and specializations of social work education are:

- Human Resource Management/ Personnel Management/ Industrial Relation and Labour Laws/ Industrial Social Work/ Industrial Relation and Personnel Management
- Community Development/ Rural Development
- Medical and Psychiatric Social Work
- Family and Child Welfare
- Social Work in Correctional Field

These are the main specialization provided by social work institutions in India. MSW/BSW/ MA (Social Work). In social work we have different curriculum in all specialization theoretical and practical. Students are placed in agency or community on the basis of their specialization [7].

IX. OBJECTIVES OF THE STUDY

- To design a model of field work practicum in the field of Labour Welfare.
- To understand the role of social worker to maximize the welfare of workers in industry.

X. NEED OF THIS MODEL AND STUDY

This study plays an important role in enhancing the field work curriculum in the field of Human Resource Management, especially in the field of labour welfare. Labour welfare is not only required in industrial setting, but it is necessary in un-organised sector too, where workers are not getting social security provisions, welfare provisions. Field work practice in the field of labour welfare is not sound because of lack of field work guidelines and improper supervision. There is an immediate need to design the model of field work curriculum to enhance skills of professional social worker and to aware the workers regarding welfare and safety provisions. In this way this particular study is useful for both social worker and labour perspective.

Analysis of model: This model of field work practicum designed by the research scholar by using main and important provision of labour legislations. Researcher included the guidelines of fourteen labour laws like, factories act, trade union act, employees' compensation act, payment of wages act, standing order act, industrial disputes act, minimum wages act, employees' insurance act, employees' provident fund act, maternity benefit act, payment of wages act, contract labour act, payment of gratuity act, equal remuneration act. This table of guidelines classified into five columns, first column is serial number, second column shows title of the act, third column deals with the field work day, fourth and most important column deals with the guidelines or objective to be applied at the field, final column of the table is expected outcome day by day as per the objective or guidelines designed under the act.

XI. ROLE OF SOCIAL WORKER

During field work practice in industrial setting a social worker plays several roles. First, social worker collects base line information of all member of the organization from management. This baseline information includes basic personal information to professional information. Collected information always helps him to understand the dynamics of industry i.e. human behaviour, group activities and organizational functioning [13].

Now roles of a social worker can be classified as followed:

- Social worker as a field work trainee,
- Social worker as HR manager,
- Social worker as a welfare officer,
- Social worker as educator,
- Social worker as an awareness generator,
- Social worker as a counselor,
- Social worker as a researcher,
- Social worker as a negotiator,
- Social worker as mediator.

XII.CONCLUSION

On the basis of above discussion we can say that labour welfare is a specialisation of social work profession. In this particular paper research scholar designed a model of field work practicum in the field of labour welfare to strengthen the field work practice. This is a proposed model which might be useful for the students in future. Different institutions are offering several specializations like community development, HRM, MPSW, Family and child welfare, etc. But, the field work practice is not developed as it should be. Through this paper researcher made efforts to develop field work practice in the field of labour welfare. To prepare a model researcher used guidelines of labour legislations. Role of social worker is always necessary to enhance the overall functioning of the society. In industries a social worker plays different roles to provide benefit to the workers. Last but not least social work education increases over all social welfare and labour welfare is a part of social welfare and a specialised field of social work profession. This study fulfils the future demands of field work practicum in the field of labour welfare.
