

Julius Müller long ago gave us the classic "Christian Doctrine of Sin," but many of us have forgotten his book and some of us have not yet seen it. We will more readily take up a smaller, fresher volume. Here it is.

Our author first defines the Fact. Then in three parts he treats the Fact in Poetry and Philosophy; in History and Religion; in Theology and Thought.

That outline is attractive and its analysis and development fascinate while a vigorous, lucid style draws on. The subject is one of supreme importance in religion, whether of thought or of life, and this discussion will serve to emphasize that importance, deepen conviction and promote redemption.

My Father's Business, or a Brief Sketch of the Life and Work of Agnes Gibson. By Marian H. Fische, with Preface by Rev. J. Stuart Holden, M.A. China Inland Mission, London and Philadelphia. xi.+80 pages. Price, 1-6 net. (50c postpaid.)

A touching, instructive and inspiring account of one of the many comparatively unknown heroines of world conquest. Miss Gibson must have been a sort of genius, for she achieved remarkable results in the masterful direction of one of the C. I. M. stations. The biography does not emphasize this side of the life, but, as is characteristic of the Mission with which she worked, tells rather the spiritual biography. This simple story is worth study by any student of life or any lover of the "human."
