

for several years his business associate. He knew Dr. Trumbull intimately during the later years of his life, and has diligently studied the sources for the earlier years. This is one of the most important of recent biographies.

W. J. MCGLOTHLIN.

Readings in European History. A Collection of Extracts from the Sources chosen with the purpose of illustrating the progress of culture in Western Europe since the German Invasions.

By James Harvey Robinson, Professor of History in Columbia University. Vol. 1. From the Breaking up of the Roman Empire to the Protestant Revolt. Ginn & Company, Boston, New York, Chicago, London.

The title of this collection of mediæval documents is sufficiently descriptive. The documents are well chosen and seem to be carefully translated. The collection is intended primarily as a handbook of materials to accompany the editor's "Introduction to the History of Western Europe." It may be used with advantage in connection with courses of lectures on mediæval history, being as well adapted for the Church Historian as for the teacher of secular history. It would be easy, of course, for any teacher of mediæval history to point out the omission of documents that would have enriched the collection and the inclusion of some that might have given way to others of more importance. But the present collection will prove eminently satisfactory to the average teacher.

ALBERT HENRY NEWMAN.

Baylor Theological Seminary.

The New Reformation. Recent Evangelical Movements in the Roman Catholic Church.

By John A. Bain, M. A. T. & T. Clark, Edingburgh, 1906. Imported by Chas. Scribner's Sons, New York. Pp. 283. Price $1.50 net.

As its name indicates, this work is an account, compiled from the latest sources of the progress of Protestantism among Roman Catholics in all the principal countries of Europe and America. To one who has not kept pace with