

merely states that it is "just as good," and seeks patronage for it on the ground of its comparative cheapness. Now, in regard to the latter point, I may remark that the preparation of Fellows' Syrup necessitates great expense, as well as extreme care, in order to secure both uniformity and stability in its composition; and it would not be possible to produce it at a lower cost without sacrificing the important and distinctive peculiarities to which alone it owes its reputation. Moreover, the attempt to reduce the cost of production would not only mean an immediate deterioration in the character of the preparation, but would inevitably end in disappointment to the physician who prescribed it, and, possibly, in danger to the patient for whom it was prescribed. A great deal is said by advertisers at the present day as to the advantages of cheap medicines; but it requires little penetration to see that economies effected in this direction will be dearly purchased, if the evils to which I have above referred are the outcome of them.

In conclusion, I may remark that probably no one pharmaceutical preparation has ever been recommended by the medical profession to such an extent as Fellows' Syrup of Hypophosphites. I have in my possession nearly a thousand letters testifying to its beneficial effects, which have been sent to me during the last few years by medical men in all parts of the world. This fact speaks for itself.

With many apologies for troubling you once again on this subject.

TEN CHANCES TO ONE!

If you are feeling nervous, low spirited, have a headache, sour stomach, growing thin, feeling weak, can't sleep, catch cold easily, you will be scared by reading some frightful tale into believing that you have consumption, grip, or are threatened with nervous prostration; don't you believe it. A disordered stomach will cause all of those difficulties, and more too. Burnham's Clam Bouillon is a delicious food, that is better than drugging. Diet on it for three days, and if your case is chronic, use it longer. You will discover its wonderful curative properties and enjoy the process.
