

was it Jesus who manifested Himself to Saul?" "Were there two present, Saul and Jesus, or only one, Saul?" You feel like marking paragraph after paragraph. The book is written with nervous energy and tremendous nerve. He grips the verities of Christianity with a master's hand.

A. T. ROBERTSON.

Der Brief des Apostels

Erklärt von Lic. Haus Lietzmann, Verlag von J. C. B. Mohr (Paul Siebeck), Tübingen, Germany. 1906. Pr. M. 1.50. S. 80.

This is the first "Lieferung" of Band III. of the Handbuch zum Neuen Testament which is to have five volumes. Volume I. will treat the grammar and literary surroundings, Volume II., the Gospels, Volume III, the Pauline Epistles, Volume IV., the rest of the New Testament, Volume V., New Testament Introduction and practical questions. It is a very engaging series and competent scholars are engaged for the task. A German translation of the Epistle is here given with brief and pungent comments. The comments, however, are based on the Greek text. They exhibit a scholarly equipment, though one is surprised (S. 25), to see Lietzmann prefer the text ἐχομεν to ἐχωμεν. It is beautifully printed and the whole series will be one of the handiest to be had.

A. T. ROBERTSON.

Shaw, The Pauline Epistles. Introductory and Expository Studies. Second Edition. Edinburgh, T. & T. Clark. New York, Chas. Scribner's Sons. Pages, 508.

This is not an entirely new book, but it so exactly meets the needs of many students that it deserves notice. In the several years that it has been before the public, it has not been superseded, though other good discussions of Paul's Epistles have appeared. Dr. Shaw has a combination of real scholarship that is alert and sane with the gift of a clear and winning style. He goes right at the thing and says it. The problems are fairly faced and the student is put in touch with the results of the best