It would be interesting to discuss the influence upon Dr. Forsyth's thought of the pragmatic philosophy so ably championed by Professors James, Schiller and Dewy; but there is only space to call attention to the fact that he seems to have derived some suggestions and impulses from that source.

There are many who will feel that our author has gone entirely too far in his acceptance of the conclusions of Higher Criticism and of Modern Science in general. Others, of course, will think that he has not gone far enough, that in his main contention he is reactionary. Others, again, will think that he is inconsistent in what he accepts and rejects of the scientific religious theories of the time, that he cannot arrest "the modern mind" at just the point where he himself stands. But whatever one may think as to the merits of his contentions he must feel in this book the force of a vivile personality, a courageous and comprehensive mind, a robust and intelligent faith. It is well worth reading.   C. S. GARDNER.

The Village and Country Sunday School.

By E. A. Fox, Secretary Kentucky Sunday School Association. The Franklin Printing Co., Louisville, Ky. Price 50 cents. Cloth.

The Difficulties, Advantages and Importance of the Country Sunday School as indicated in the first three chapters of the book are timely and interesting dscussions. The entire volume of 160 pages and 29 brief pointed chapters is devoted to a sympathetic and intelligent consideration of the different phases of an up-to-date village and country Sunday school. It is an admirable book to put into the hands of a country pastor, Sunday school superintendent or teacher.

BYRON H. DEMENT.

The Pastor's Place of Privilege and Power in the Sunday School.

By E. A. Fox, Secretary Kentucky Sunday School Association. Publishing House M. E. Church, South, Nashville, Tenn. Price 75 cents.

The acute accent has been recently laid on the pastor's relation to the Sunday school agency as a factor of power in the Kingdom of God. Prof. Cox has rendered a valuable service