

The Development of the Sunday School.—Official Report of the Eleventh International Sunday School Convention at Toronto, 1905.

1905. W. N. Hartshorn, Fort Hill Press. Boston. 1905.

This volume is a most valuable contribution to Sunday school literature. It has four main divisions. The first is historical, containing accounts of the modern Sunday school movement in its various aspects. There are chapters here on Robert Raikes and the Eighteenth Century, The Nineteenth Century Sunday School, Organized Primary Work, 1870-1905, National and International Conventions, and on many other valuable subjects.

In division two the addresses of the Toronto Convention are printed in full. This section is an astonishingly rich collection of Sunday school literature and will repay careful reading and study. The third division contains reports of the various conferences which were held. In these proceedings numberless practical and pertinent topics are considered and they furnish valuable assistance to the seeker for light on Sunday school work and method. The fourth division contains tables and appendices. From this very inadequate outline of the contents of this volume the reader can form an opinion as to its attractiveness. It should have a wide circulation and careful reading. It will prove exceedingly valuable to all who desire material for addresses, as well as to other students of the Sunday school movement.

E. Y. MULLINS.

A Century of Bibles.

By a Sunday School Teacher. The Griffith and Rowland Press, Philadelphia.

This booklet of 88 pages was written for Sunday school teachers. It contains a mass of valuable information concerning Bible publication and distribution in the last century put in a form that will be specially attractive to Sunday school teachers. It is an inspiring story well told.

W. J. MCGLOTHLIN.