

Expositions of Holy Scripture. Third Series. Six volumes.

By Alexander Maclaren. $7.50 net per set of six volumes. This set John's Gospel (Vols. 1, 2, 3), Acts (Chapter xiii—end), and two volumes on Old Testament reviewed under Old Testament department.

Dr. Robertson Nicoll has said that if he could have only one set of books on the Bible, he would take Maclaren's Expositions of Holy Scripture. This is great praise and it is just. Dr. Maclaren's style is so well known all over the world as to call for no comment. He is still the world's foremost expository preacher. Careful scholarship has here confronted the interpretation of the Bible in the light of modern needs. The great preacher has a marvelous faculty for seizing the heart of the passage and putting it in touch with the life of the man of today. The volumes on the Gospel of John bring out the best things in Dr. Maclaren's mind. He here walks on the heights with calm step and clear vision of the unseen. The richness of these volumes makes detailed criticism in any measure impossible.

St. Paul's Epistle to the Ephesians. A revised text and translation with exposition and notes.

By J. Armitage Robinson, D. D., Dean of Westminster. Second edition. Macmillan & Co., London and New York. 1907. Pages 314.

This volume first appeared in 1903, but a new edition is now called for. It has stood the test of service as one of the very best volumes on this great Epistle. It is not necessary to go into much detail now since the book is so well known. The introduction is brief, but full of instructive matter. The author in a sense has two commentaries, one a new translation with interpretative exposition that is very helpful, the other the Greek text with critical comments on the Greek. He then discusses the important questions that are left over and concludes with notes on various readings that are helpful. There are good indices. On the whole one will not go amiss who spends his time on this able and excellent exposition, which is much in the spirit of Lightfoot.
