Nero.

By Stephen Phillips. New York. MacMillan Company. 1906. Price $1.25 net. Pages 200.

This is a wondrously graphic tragedy. The poem does not cover all the career of Nero, but closes with the burning of Rome. It gives, however, the development of Nero in strong relief. There is the sure grasp of a master workman in this drama. One doubts if Mr. Phillips has done anything better than this brilliant portrayal of the world's most capricious tyrant. The world was at its nadir in moral conceptions and Nero was its exponent.

V. SUNDAY SCHOOL.

How to Conduct a Sunday School, or Twenty-eight Years a Superintendent.

By Marion Lawrance. Fleming H. Revell Co. New York, Chicago, Toronto.

This is one of the most practical and helpful books which has been issued from the press for many a day on the Sunday-school. Mr. Marion Lawrance is an expert on the Sunday-school in all departments. The book consists of twenty-two chapters, with three appendices. Some of the topics dealt with in the chapters are as follows: The Sunday-school Equipped, The Sunday-school Organized, The Sunday-school Graded, Sunday-school Giving, Special Occasions, The Blackboard and Object Teaching, Temperance Day, Decision Day. The last chapter is on an intensely practical theme. That Big Boy and How to Deal With Him. Appendix A, is on A Superintendent's Suggestions to Himself; Appendix B, One Hundred Good Books for Sunday-school Workers; C, My Former Pastors: An Appreciation.

Simplicity of style, clearness of view and practicality
