

size. Many a teacher and pupil will read it with delight and profit. It consists of two parts with ten chapters in each part.

Part One is devoted to Pupils in General. Beginning with the Study of Human Nature the various stages of development from infancy to maturity are discussed in an intelligent, up-to-date and pedagogical manner with special reference to Sunday school efficiency.

In Part Two "The Mind of the Pupil" is studied in the light of its various faculties or functions, as sensation and perception, attention and interest, apperception, memory, thought, emotion, will, and religion and morals. At the close of each chapter there are suggested topics for class discussion and class papers.

It is what many teachers and pastors have long desired and well deserves an extensive circulation.

Our Sixty-Six Sacred Books, or how our Bible was made.

By the Rev. Edwin W. Rice, D.D. American Sunday School Union, Philadelphia.

This is a revised and enlarged edition with analysis and questions suggestive to all students of the Bible. The book merits the extended circulation it has received and in this revision some recent critical treatises on the Old Testament are briefly considered, and due recognition is given to the increased popularity of the Revised Versions of the Bible and to its growing circulation. The author says the purpose of the revision is "to incorporate the accepted results of recent explorations and the researches of critical scholars within the past decade." The treatment of versions, manuscripts, date, authorship, and structure of the Bible is sane, scholarly and conservative. The brief analysis of each book, and divers items, the contents, history and circulation of the Bible are helpful to the thoughtful student. It is a compact volume of 218 pages, written in clear, pointed English by a master of logical analysis and Biblical details.
