The Student's Bible. (King James Version, with Copious Readings from the American Revised Version) with marginal notes of an exhaustive topical analysis of all passages, citing explanatory foot notes with numerous sub-headings and with references to all related Scriptures.

By Orville J. Nave, D.D., LL.D., and Anna Semans Nave, M.L.A. Topical Bible Publishing Co., Lincoln, Neb., 1907.

Chaplain Nave's Topical Bible is well known to Bible readers. In the present work he has produced what seems to the reviewer to be the most useful work of its kind in existence. It is a complete system of analysis and references in one handy volume. The unique feature is the fact that references to all Biblical passages bearing on a given subject are collected in a footnote at one point. This footnote refers to every passage bearing on the subject and every passage bearing on the subject refers to this footnote. Some eighty thousand subjects are thus treated and these subjects are gathered up in a valuable index at the end. The text is that of the King James version, but where the Revised and American versions differ materially their valuable readings are indicated in the margin, where there are other valuable notes. Every Bible student who wants to know the teaching of the book will find this work a most useful guide to its collected teachings. W. J. MCGLOTHLIN.

Well this he tells us in quite a lively way in the first chapter entitled "In the Big Woods". We are reminded of what we learn from another source, that the Senator from Indiana was, in effect, brought up in a logging camp. He had a prodigious natural
