

The paper analyzes an approach based on deep learning to extract affordances from images and to use that for robotic execution.