INTRODUCTION

I started this Maurice Elwin discography on January 31, 2021, at a time when a possible abatement of the global pandemic was in sight, in the expectation that it would be a few months before the bittersweet leisure afforded me by the crisis might be interrupted by my resuming my former activities. It was always my intention to publish it, as I have done, as a working draft on Elwin's 125th birthday (June 14, 2021). The task was daunting, as I had reason to believe that Elwin might prove to be the second most prolific British singer of his era — a claim borne out so far by my research. Compiling even a fairly complete account of his recorded artistic output would take years, not months. British dance band singers were seldom credited by name, and Elwin compounded the problem of identifying his vocals by using over sixty pseudonyms, some of which were also used by other artists. For that matter, he also made records under variations of his real name, Norman MacPhail Blair.

My research aims not just to identify Elwin vocals, but also to document records that have been misidentified as including his voice or that could conceivably be mistaken for his work. So far I have counted 2,178 discrete matrices that are either definitely by Elwin or that I have not yet been able to rule out as his. My experience so far leads me to believe that while I shall eventually be able to mark as spurious some of what I have listed here, there must be at least an equal amount of material that I have not yet identified. So the number 2,178, while obviously not the final count, should be an indicator of the order of magnitude we are dealing with. To put that number into perspective, John Wright, working from Barry Wolsey's Sam Browne Discography and its supplements, estimates that Sam Browne, by far the most prolific British singer of his sort, made at least 2,818 recordings over the course of a career spanning from 1928 well into the 1950s. Elwin made all of his publicly issued recordings between 1925-1936 — a much shorter period — so he may emerge, in the final assessment, as the harder-working recording artist.

Artistic quality is not measured in numbers, however. Elwin's singing exhibits an unpretentious elegance; it is subtle and precise, evoking sincerity as much as any other quality. It is interesting to note, though, that he was the regular vocalist for some of the most exciting bands of the period (I think particularly of those of the Firmans and of Arthur Lally). To the extent that his comparative restraint contrasted with their hotness, I think the effect must have been intentional. For reflections on Elwin's artistic merits, I would refer the reader to my website, mauriceelwin.com.

To my knowledge, what I have written here is the first Maurice Elwin discography. The groundwork for it was laid, however, in 1980 by Chris Hayes and George Carpenter (1980b), who tried to estimate how many records Elwin made, and in the process revealed some of his more obscure pseudonyms and collaborations. I do not believe that I am done yet following their leads. Much of my most reliable data comes from Brian Rust and Sandy Forbes's 1989 British Dance Bands on Record, but even that discographical "bible" is not free from errors, and it does not recognize "Guy Victor" as an Elwin pseudonym. It also accounts for less than half of the recording sessions Elwin was involved in, a majority of which did not involve dance band music per se. Rust's Jazz and Ragtime Records (2016) makes a good effort at identifying some of Elwin's solo work as being of "jazz interest."

I have made use of a great many label discographies which can be found in the reference list. Most of the best print and CD-ROM resources are published by the City of London Phonograph and Gramophone Society (CLPGS). Special mention must be made, however, of the online discographies of Mike Thomas, who seems to have accounted for every British label for which the CLPGS does not yet have a book.

This discography includes recordings that are difficult to date and that have been therefore relegated to the end of the list. There is also the problem of identifying Elwin's vocal partners. "Maurice and Sydney" seems always to include Maurice Elwin, but his partner can be either Sydney Nesbitt or Sydney Wilson. "Solemn and Gay" likewise always includes Elwin, but his partner is only mostly Cavan O'Connor. Decca's "Bert and Bob" records do not even always have Elwin in them. There are other such vocal groups. For the time being, I am focusing on identifying Elwin's voice rather than that of any vocal partners.

There are certain kinds of material that I have not included. The Regal duettists "Sweet and Low" were considered by Hayes and Carpenter to feature Elwin (1980b, 32), but I get the sense that that is seldom if ever true. Rather than list a lot of records that probably do not have Elwin's voice on them, I have put off addressing these pseudonymous duettists until I have a convincing example or two of Elwin's involvement.

I intend to continue publishing updates to this book in web format at mauriceelwin.com and as a PDF on Zenodo. Please contact me with any suggestions you have for its improvement. I am particularly keen to see label scans (the catalogue numbers in italics are the ones I have not seen yet), to confirm take numbers, and to hear transfers.

NOTE: The songwriters' names for "Two little cups and saucers" both look as if they might be Elwin pseudonyms (F. J. Alwyn, Maurice Scott); and yet Maurice Scott would appear to have been a very real person with his own music publishing company. F. J. Alwyn was said to have been the song's lyricist ("Song Notes: Maurice Scott," The Stage, March 18, 1926); if Elwin had been involved in the song's writing, I would have expected him to be the music's composer.

Unconfirmed “Bert and Bob” (Decca)

“Bert and Bob” seem often to have been Maurice Elwin and Cavan O’Connor, but not always.

BERT AND BOB, vocal duet, with pianoforte accompaniment; at the piano: CLAUDE IVY. January 31, 1930.

MB-911-1-2-3	I’ll be reminded of you (film The Vagabond Lover) (Smith)	Dec F-1633
MB-912-1-2	A little kiss each morning (Harry Woods)	Dec F-1633
MB-913-1-2	A night of happiness (Conrad-Mitchell-Gottler)	Dec F-1659

NOTE: Smith notes that the file entry shows Bert and Bob’s identities to be “HODGES AND PLANT, amended to read THE TWO MACS” (MS-F).

IS IT ELWIN? Probably. On the same day, in the four subsequent matrices, Maurice Elwin sang vocal refrain for the Rhythm Maniacs.

MS-F

BERT AND BOB. February 21, 1930.

MB-984-1-2-3	Sitting by the windows (Conrad-Mitchell-Gottler)	Dec F-1659
--------------	--	------------

NOTE: As at the previous session, “Bert and Bob” are really “Hodges and Plant,” names which have been further amended in the file to read “The Two Macs” (MS-F).

IS IT ELWIN? Maybe. The preceding four matrices are of Elwin singing vocal refrain for the Rhythm Maniacs, but they were made the previous day.

MB-1364-1-2	Lazy Lou'siana moon (Walter Donaldson)	Dec F-1806

IS IT ELWIN? Maybe. "Wynn" was one of Maurice Elwin's usual pseudonyms. The following four matrices are him singing with the Rhythm Maniacs, but they are from the next day.

MS-F

Unconfirmed Parlophone Recordings

It is possible that the “Singing Serenaders” are always Maurice Elwin and Jack Plant, but I have only inspected one Singing Serenaders record. There may be a counterexample where Plant is not the duettist, but I cannot be sure yet.

Arthur Badrock, in his index, alludes to a rumor that “John O’Grady” is a pseudonym for Tom Burke, but he “know[s] of no evidence to support [the claim]” (1994, 95). Elwin definitely recorded “Nothing but” as “John O’Grady,” and the fact that “John O’Grady” recordings are issued on Ariel as being by “John Curtis” and “Henry Street” (Elwin pseudonyms) might suggest that “John O’Grady” is at least not infrequently Elwin.

I have found a transfer of a version of "My cutie's due at two-to-two today" labelled simply as "Ronnie Munro Band." It consists of a duet between Maurice Elwin and another man — but not Jack Plant. Ronnie Munro is not listed as having recorded that song by Rust and Forbes (BDBR), but it is possible that the mystery transfer is of Parlophone E-5748 or Ariel 4205 and that Ronnie Munro is mentioned on the label as having accompanied the duet. Obviously, I would very much like to see and hear the record itself.

IS IT ELWIN? Probably. Elwin recorded "Nothing but" (Par mx. E-1650) as "John O'Grady," almost definitely at the same session. An added reason for suspecting Elwin recorded "Honey-bird" is the fact that it was issued on Ariel as being by "John Curtis," a pseudonym almost exclusively used by Elwin.

THE SINGING SERENADERS, duet. C. December 1927-January 1928.

E-1678	Is she my girl friend?	Par E-5981
E-1679	Bless her little heart	Par E-5963
E-1680	Sunset down in Somerset	Par E-5962, Ar 4263, Ar 4426
E-1681	Every morn, every noon, every night	Par E-5962

AB-Par, MGT-Ar

JOHN O'GRADY, tenor. C. January 1928

E-1712	I'll think of you	Par E-5957
E-1713-2	I'm in heaven when I see you smile, Diane	Par E-5957

IS IT ELWIN? Possibly. Elwin seems occasionally to have recorded on Parlophone as "John O'Grady."

JOHN O'GRADY, tenor, with instrumental trio. C. February 1928.

E-1743-2	I heard you sing	Par E-5979
E-1744-2	The blue Danube	Par E-5979, Ar 4426, Ar Z-4550

IS IT ELWIN? Possibly. Elwin is known to have used the pseudonym "John O'Grady" on Parlophone.

AB-Par, MGT-Ar

JOHN O'GRADY, tenor, with instrumental trio. C. February 1928.

E-1775-2	Janette	Par E-5993
E-1776-2	Can't you hear me say I love you?	Par E-5993, Ar 4271
E-1777	The song is ended	Par E-5994, Ar 4271, Ar Z-4566
E-1778-2	The beggar	Par E-5994

IS IT ELWIN? Possibly. Elwin seems sometimes to have recorded as "John O'Grady, tenor," and the next four matrices are by "John Curtis," i.e., Elwin.

AB-Par

L. SILBERMAN'S TRIO. March-April 1928.

E-1816	Yvonne	Par E-6007
E-1817	Rita	Par E-6007
E-1818	The song is ended	Par E-6008
E-1820	I'm in heaven when I see you smile, Diane	Par E-6008

AB-Par

JOHN O'GRADY, tenor, with orchestra. C. Summer 1928.

E-1995-2	Ramona	Par E-6060, Ar 4291
E-1996-2	Just a little fond affection	Par E-6060, Ar 4291

IS IT ELWIN? Possibly. Elwin seems occasionally to have recorded under the pseudonym "John O'Grady, tenor."

AB-Par

WILSON AND WALLER (Maurice Elwin and Eddie Collis; as HAMPTON AND SMART on Ariel), duet, with orchestra. Late March 1929.

E-2374-2	My flame of love	Par E-6145, Ar 4449
E-2375	My heart wants to kiss you, cherie	Par E-6145
E-2376-2	Ninette	Par E-6146, Ar 4362
E-2377-2	When little children smile	Par E-6146

IS IT ELWIN? Almost certainly. Thomas identifies Elwin and Collis on the Ariel sides (MGT-Ar).

AB-Par, MGT-Ar

WILSON AND WALLER (Maurice Elwin and Eddie Collis; as HAMPTON AND SMART on Ariel), vocal duet, with piano. May 1929.

E-2462-2	Do something	Par E-6177, Ar 4408
E-2463-2	You can't take my memories from me	Par E-6177, Ar 4410

IS IT ELWIN? Almost certainly. Thomas identifies Elwin and Collis (MGT-Ar).

AB-Par, MGT-Ar

WILSON AND WALLER (?Maurice Elwin and ?Eddie Collis), with orchestra. C. August 7, 1929.

E-2712- 2 - 1 [sic]	Tho' you threw me down	Par E-6193
E-2713- 2	Don't make my heart your plaything	Par E-6193
E-2714	We toddle up the hill together	Par E-6204
E-2715	Little baby curls	Par E-6204

IS IT ELWIN? Possibly. Elwin and Collis seem to have been "Wilson and Waller" at least most of the time, and Elwin recorded the next two matrices with Ronnie Munro, for what that is worth.

AB-Par

DAVID SHARRON (as BERNARD ARMSTRONG on Ariel), with chorus and orchestra. September 1930.

E-3635- 2	When I passed the old church door	Par E-6354, Ar Z-4625
E-3636	Meet me in my dreams tonight	Par E-6354, Ar Z-4629

IS IT ELWIN? Almost certainly. Thomas identifies Elwin on both recordings (MGT-Ar), and Elwin recorded the previous two matrices.

Unconfirmed Mellow and Rich

MELLOW AND RICH (Cavan O'Connor and Maurice Elwin). c. April 1933.

389	Have you ever been lonely? (Peter de Rose)	Bcst 965
390	Where the wild, wild roses bloom (Jack Brown-Milt Taggart-Mary Woolsey)	Bcst 965

IS IT ELWIN? Possibly. "Mellow and Rich" was normally a pseudonym for Cavan O'Connor and Tom Barratt; in this instance, it would appear that Elwin stood in for Barratt (VR). Hayes and Carpenter mentioned "Mellow and Rich" as at least occasionally including Elwin (1980b, 32). Thomas, on the other hand, lists the duettists on this record as O'Connor and Barratt (MGT-Bcst).

A-1325	"Look what you've done" (in " The Kid from Spain ") (Kalmar-Ruby-Akst)	Bcst 3304

NOT ELWIN: Badrock suggests that a certain baritone who sang on Peggy Cochrane Broadcast records made between May 1932 and early 1933 might have been either Sam Browne or Maurice Elwin and seems to lean towards Elwin (2001, 3162-3163), but the voice on this record is clearly that of Browne.

APPENDIX: CONVENTIONS USED IN THIS DISCOGRAPHY

1. Session Headers

Capital letters are used to identify personal names, group names, and personal and group pseudonyms that actually appear on record labels, whereas mixed-case names are supplementary and do not appear on the labels. When not otherwise specified, a single, male name in capital letters will either be a variation on Elwin's real name ("NORMAN BLAIR" or "MacPHAIL BLAIR"), his most common pseudonym ("MAURICE ELWIN"), or one of his other sixty-odd pseudonyms. Other information from the labels (e.g., "vocal refrain," "baritone," "with orchestral accompaniment") is supplied in lowercase, with supplemental information not found on the labels (such as the identity of the accompaniment or musical director) put between parentheses. Any information after the first period is entirely supplemental and will not be found on a label.

Locations are provided when they are known, as are dates or approximate dates. I sometimes provide my own guesses at session dates in italics. I offer these tentatively, as they are (mostly) based on matrix sequences or (rarely) on issue dates. Matrix numbers are really best understood as unique identifiers rather than as pure serial numbers; they were assigned in ways that are not always perfectly understood and do not necessarily reflect a straightforward timeline. Issue dates provide a perfect terminus ante quem — the last conceivable date the recording could have been made — but only that.

I do not generally identify individual band personnel, but many of them can be found in Rust and Forbes (1989) or Rust (2016).

2. Tables

The tables that represent the recordings made at each session provide:

1. Matrix and take numbers: A matrix is a number that is often preceded or followed by a prefix or suffix. In this discography, prefixes and suffixes are separated from the matrix numbers themselves by hyphens that do not always appear on the records. Following the matrix number or suffix, there are frequently take numbers (when they are known), and takes that are known to have been actually issued are underlined. Note that I mention all takes explicitly mentioned by my sources. This practice results in a certain amount of necessary unevenness between my treatment of recordings made by the Gramophone Company and Decca, for which we know all takes made, and the output of most other record labels, for which only the issued takes are known. I have decided to err on the side of reporting all known take information whenever possible.
2. Song name and songwriter(s): Each song's name is listed as much as possible exactly as it appears on the record; that includes any element of the song name that occurs in small type (which I surround with parentheses). When the record label explicitly refers to a show or a film that a song comes from, that is noted in parenthesis, e.g., “(from Show Title)” or “(film Movie Title).” When Maurice Elwin has sung one or more elements of a medley, they are listed in quotes, along with the medley name itself, thus: “First song title” and “Third song title” (in “Medley name”). Songwriters are listed in parentheses, with their names separated by hyphens. When possible, I list the names as they appear on the record label, allowing myself to correct spelling errors or occasionally to add known songwriters whose names have been omitted (a common occurrence).

3. Record label(s), catalogue number(s), etc.: For each known 78 rpm-era record containing a given matrix I list the label name (when possible using [the abbreviations found in Rust and Forbes \[1989\]](#)) and the catalogue number. Non-UK issues use a two-letter country code in parentheses when there could be any question as to which market a record was released in. On rare occasions, Ross Laird’s research (1996) allows me to specify that a UK issue was released under the same catalogue number in Australia, thus: “(inc. AU).” If no takes of a particular matrix made at a session were ever issued, I term them “rejected” if another attempt was made to record them and “unissued” if no further attempt was made. On one occasion I refer the reader to an LP that contains a song that was never issued in the 78 rpm era; the LP’s name is underlined. I like to scrutinize labels for discographical information when possible; when I have yet to do so for a particular label, I italicize it in the tables.

3. Session Notes

Any further discussion of a session or its resulting output that does not fit into the abbreviated format of the tables is contained below them in italics. References to discographies and other sources use source abbreviation codes (see below).

4. Source Abbreviations

Small, boldface codes are included as the last item for every session to show relevant sources. Note that I generally include all sources that mention any element of a session, not just those that I believe to be correct. I rely on the evidence of my own collection implicitly and only cite it (as AGK) when I have found that it adds something not evident from other sources.
