Abstract: English author John Escott's Forrest Gump beautifully depicts human life and feelings through logical and vivid images. We quickly realize this is true in this wonderfully warm and funny story about Forrest Gump, a good-hearted young man from Alabama in the USA. One day when Curtis had to change a wheel on the car, I helped him. "if you're an idiot, he said angrily, how do you know how to do that? Maybe I am an idiot, I said, but I'm not stupid". "I was born an idiot, but I'm cleverer than most people think."

Key words: Retold by John Escott "Forrest Gump", Tom Hanks, Jenny Curran, idiot, Mom, Daddy, Bonnie and Clyde, Curtis, Bubba, play game, Students' Centre, Team, Vietnam, Helicopters, California, Washington.

He was born an idiot, but his's cleverer than people think. When he was born, his mom named his Forrest. His daddy died just after He was born. He worked on the ships. One day a big box of bananas fell down on my daddy and killed him. So, Forrest don't like a bananas much. Only banana cake. At first, when he was growing up, he played with everybody. But, then some boys hit him . And his mom didn't want his to play with them again. He tired to play with girls, but they all ran away from his. One day, he went to an ordinary school for a year. Then the children started laughing and running away from his. But one girl, Jenny Curren, didn't run away, and sometimes she walked home with his. She was nice. Then they put his into another kind of school, and there were some strange boys there, some couldn't eat or go the toilet without help. He stayed in that school for five or six years. But when he was thirteen, he grew six inches in six month! And by the time he was sixteen, he was bigger and heavier than all the other boys in the school. One day, He was walking home, and a car stopped next to his. The driver asked his named, and he told him "what school do you go to? He asked. " I told him about idiot school". Do you ever play football? He asked. "No, I told him " I see other people playing, but I don't play and they never ask me to play with them". "OK", the man said. One day, he began to play football with high school team, and Coach Fellers helped him. One teacher, Miss Henderson, was really nice. She taught him to read. And who do you think he saw in the school cafe? Jenny Curran! She was all grown-up now, with pretty black hair, long legs, and a beautiful face. Forrest love her. But everyone would call Forrest a fool, stupid. Everyone was making fun. Forrest can play harmonica. Next evening, Jenny arrived at our house, wearing a white dress, and with a pink flower in her hair. She was the prettiest thing that Forrest ever saw. Danger in the Jungle. There was a little valley between two hills. They were on one hill and the enemy was on the other. Then they got orders to move the machine gun about fifty metres to the left of the big tree that was in the middle of the valley, and to find a safe place to put it before the enemy blew us all up. They found a place to put the gun and stayed there all night. They could hear shooting all round us, but they didn't hit us. When it was day again, our planes came, and they blew up the enemy soldiers. Then they watched while our men moved off the hill and came down into the valley. The enemy started shooting at us before they got on the ground, and they blew up our helicopters. The weeks went past slowly. He got a letter from his mom, and, he wrote back to her that everything was Ok. He also wrote a letter to Jenny Curran and asked her parents to send it on to her. But he didn't get a reply. Bubba and he decided that we would get a shrimp boat when they got home again, and catch shrimps and make a lot of money. Bubba planned it all. It started to rain one day, and it didn't stop for two months! But they still had to look for enemy soldiers - and one day they found them. We were crossing a rice field when suddenly they started shooting at us. Somebody shouted, "back!" he picked up his machine gun and ran towards some trees. He looked round for Bubba, but he wasn't there. Then he heard that he was out in the rice field, and he was hurt, so he left his gun by the trees and ran back into the field. "Gump! You can't go out there!" somebody shouted. But he just ran. Halfway out, he saw another man who was hurt. He was holding a hand up to him. The rest of the night was terrible. The worst night that he's ever known. Nobody could get any help to us, and the enemy soldiers were so near that they could hear them talking. Then, when it got light, an American plane came and used fire-throwers on the enemy and almost on us! Suddenly the trees were on fire, and men were running out of the jungle with burned skin and clothes. During all of this, somebody shot him in the back of the leg, but he can't remember when it happened. It didn't matter. Nothing mattered. Bubba was dead, the shrimp business idea was dead with him. He just wanted to die, too. Then the helicopters came, and the enemy soldiers who were left ran away. An hour later, he was out of there and on his way to the hospital in Danang. Forrest was a part of his life. Much more can be drawn from this story. Even if everyone calls Forrest a fool. He was very smart.
