I would like to thank my colleagues of the CULTIVATE MSS Project (London, SAS, Institute of English Studies), especially Laura Cleaver and Hannah Morcos for their advice while studying these manuscripts. I am also grateful to curators and researchers who helped me identify these items in their current holding institutions. Among them are Federico Botana (London, SAS, Institute of English Studies), Joanna Collier (Houston, Public Library), William Edwards (Toronto, Pontifical Institute of Mediaeval Studies Library), Falk Eisermann (Berlin, Staatsbibliothek), Milton McC. Gatch (formerly New York, Burke Library), Yoann Givry (Cologne, Fondation Bodmer), David T. Gura (Notre Dame, Hesburgh Library), Katrin Janz-Wenig (Hamburg, Staats- und Universitätsbibliothek), Anton Löffelmeier (Munich, Stadtarchiv), Andreas Nestl (Munich, Staatsarchiv), Sara Powell (Cambridge MA, Houghton Library), Emily Runde (New York, Columbia University Library), Marina Scopel (independent scholar), Philip Vue (Portland, University of Portland, Clark Library), William Whobrey (formerly New Haven, Yale University), and Jobi Zink (Philadelphia, The Rosenbach).

* Angéline Rais is an early career research fellow at the Institute of English Studies, School of Advanced Studies, London. From March 2020 to September 2023, she was a post-doctoral research fellow with the CULTIVATE MSS Project (Institute of English Studies, School of Advanced Studies, London) and worked on the activities of early twentieth-century German antiquarian booksellers. The research for this publication has been undertaken as part of the CULTIVATE MSS Project, which has received funding from the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 research and innovation programme (Grant agreement No. 817988).

Introduction

The following appendix describes the 200 manuscripts Jacques Rosenthal offered for sale in his two-volume catalogue BMAM published in 1925 and 1928. It presents data extracted from BMAM and archives I analysed in my publications investigating Rosenthal's working methods and the criteria he used to assign a financial value to the manuscripts.¹ Its aim is therefore not to provide detailed descriptions of the manuscripts but to gather information provided by BMAM, even though it has been since revised and could be completed by additional research, and archival sources.

The manuscripts are arranged by their number in the BMAM and each entry contains four sections. The first section (in bold) indicates the author of the work, its title in an abbreviated form, date and place of production, support, and number of folios.² The items consulted in their holding institutions and in digital form are indicated by the symbol * at the end of the first section. The second section first determines the subject of the work according to the nine following categories: Bible, composite (for volumes containing works with multiple subjects), history, law, literature, liturgy, philosophy, science, and theology. Then, it specifies if the work contains a standard or non-standard version of the text. Non-standard versions gather either unprinted texts or texts differing from versions recorded in reference catalogues, such as Ludwig Hain's Repertorium bibliographicum (Stuttgart/Paris: Cotta/Renouard, 1826–1836) and Jacques-Paul Migne's Patrologia cursus completes, Series latina (Paris: Migne, 1844–1865). It also describes the language of the work, colophons, the decoration, the binding, the completeness and condition of the work, as well as the manuscript's provenance.³

There are six types of decoration:

1. Rubrication or no decoration
2. Small painted initials
3. Decorated initials
4. Historiated initials
5. Drawings, large, and small miniatures
6. Full-page, large, and small miniatures

There are also six types of bindings categorised according to their material, decoration, and the techniques used:

1. Pasteboards covered in paper
2. Half parchment and parchment over pasteboards or wooden boards
3. Half tanned skin and tanned skin over pasteboards or wooden boards
4. Tanned or white skin over pasteboards or wooden boards, tooled in blind, with clasps and furniture
5. Tanned skin over wooden boards richly tooled in blind or gold, with clasps and furniture; morocco over pasteboards tooled in blind or gold; velvet over pasteboards or wooden boards
6. Silver over wooden boards, decorated with silver filigree, rock crystal bosses, and four carved ivory plaques.

¹ For these, see Angéline Rais, 'Jacques Rosenthal's Marketing Strategies: An Analysis of Bibliotheca medii aevi manuscripta (1925 and 1928)' in The Pre-Modern Manuscript Trade and its Consequences, ca. 1890–1945, ed. by Laura Cleaver, Danielle Magnusson, Hannah Morcos, and Angéline Rais (Leeds: ARC Humanities Press, forthcoming 2024); Angéline Rais, 'Valuing Rare Books in 1920s Germany: Prices in Jacques Rosenthal's Bibliotheca medii aevi manuscripta', in The Economics of the Rare Book and Manuscript Trade, ca. 1890–1939, ed. by Federico Botana and Laura Cleaver (Leeds: ARC Humanities Press, 2024), pp. 21–40.

² Abbreviated names of Greek, Latin, and medieval authors have been extracted from the online catalogues Medieval Manuscripts in Oxford Libraries (<<https://medieval.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/>>, accessed 22 September 2023) and Handschriftencensus (<<https://handschriftencensus.de/>>, accessed 22 September 2023). The name of authors, who have not been found in these resources, are otherwise given in Latin, except for 'Alebrand de Florence' since the work he produced is in French (no. 104).

³ Unclear names of individuals and institutions are followed by a question mark in brackets.

The third section provides information about Rosenthal's source of acquisition and the price he paid for the item with references in brackets to archives and sale and auction catalogues documenting the transaction.⁴ Auctions of named collections are recorded under the collection's owner, not the auctioneer (for example Sir Thomas Phillipps, not Sotheby's). To keep the entries short, I only give the earliest known date of entry of an item in Rosenthal's stock, even if additional sources and material evidence attest to its presence in later years. Then, I specify if Rosenthal offered the manuscript in one of his previous catalogues, including that of the auction he organised with Sotheby's in April 1899, and finally I provide the book's sale price in BMAM, which Rosenthal printed on separate leaves.⁵

In the fourth part, I indicate the name of the manuscript's buyer and the date of purchase (as noted in Rosenthal's annotated copies of BMAM; references to complementary sources are given in brackets).⁶ I trace the unsold items in the catalogues of Rosenthal's heirs when their trajectories are identifiable. Finally, I describe the manuscript's current location and the identification number of its record in the SDBM.⁷

At the end are indexes of the data analysed in the entries; they contain information about provenance and Rosenthal's sources of acquisition, immediate owners, and the manuscripts' shelfmarks. These are followed by lists of archival material and library, auction, and sale catalogues cited in the records.

⁴ For copies of annotated catalogues of the Phillipps auctions, see Bodl., R. Cat. 310 P 1–13. For copies of annotated Sotheby's catalogues, see BL, S.C. Sotheby's.

⁵ The annotated copies of BMAM in the Munich Stadtarchiv contain the price list. For these and copies of Jacques Rosenthal's catalogues, see MSA, DE-1992-NL-ROS-1117–96 (available online < <https://stadtarchiv.muenchen.de/scopeQuery/detail.aspx?ID=579188>>, accessed 22 September 2023).

⁶ Names of unidentified individuals are followed by a question mark in brackets.
