Please note that this is the final version of the questionnaire. It incorporates a series of corrections as well as changes that were documented in version 3.0.7

This version also includes a small number of optional items marked in grey. These are items related to the Theory of Planned Behaviour for fertility. The items FER25, FER26, and FER27 can either be deleted entirely or shortened by deleting items FER25g and FER25h as well as FER26 (items c, d, g and i). Moreover, the item INC04 is also optional. It is a useful multi-item question to capture social exclusion. However, to shorten the questionnaire it can be omitted.

Items related to the SDG 5.6.1. are marked in blue. These are important but sensitive items. Countries might have to take extra measures in view of their sensitivity. Specifically, these are items FER28, FER29 and WEL02a.

Short history of the Baseline questionnaire

The new Baseline questionnaire builds on previous versions of the questionnaire and has involved various groups, developments and testing phases. This can be summarized in four main phases:

- Phase I: Original questionnaire (GGG-I):

The original questionnaire was developed based on the inputs of various people involved in the setting up of the GGP. The main background document was published in 2005. As compared to the previous Family and Fertility (Survey), a number of key innovations were introduced, including: the panel (prospective) dimension, the extension of the age group from 18 to 79 years old, a broader conceptualization of factors influencing fertility and family-related decisions (e.g. health and well-being), and the adoption of the Theory of Planned Behaviour to analyze demographic intentions and behaviour. In addition, the Contextual Database was developed as a key instrument to analyze micro-macro linkages. This original questionnaire was used through the Round 1 (GGG-I) in nearly 20 countries. An overview of the survey instrument and assessment of this first round of data collection can be found in the publications listed below.

- Phase II: Intermediate version 2.7:

In 2009, the GGP was awarded a Design Study grant<sup>1</sup> to further develop the GGP as a research infrastructure. During this period, a questionnaire working group (2009-12) was formed to make small amendments to the questionnaire including some of the lessons learnt from the assessment of the Round 1. Some of the key changes introduced include a new social network module, measures of how societal constraints and social policies influence decisions on family formation and retirement and a personality module. An overview of the changes can be found in Caporali (2017). Importantly, this new version was tested online in a small pilot survey in Slovenia. A similar version was also used in Belarus (2017), Latvia (pilot 2018), and Kazakhstan (2019).

- Caporali, A. (2017). Innovations introduced with the new Questionnaire. Online: <https://www.ggp-i.org/data/methodology/>

- Phase III: Development and testing of the new Baseline:

This phase extended from 2017 to 2020 and was partly financed by a grant from the European Commission<sup>2</sup>. It included various steps.

- a. First, the intermediate version (above) was coded in Blaise and tested in the Push-to-Web Three-country Pilot. Results from this Pilot can be found here. During this period, the questionnaire was slightly amended based on discussions with partners involved in the Pilot.
- b. A Questionnaire Task Force (Mills, Lugtig, Gauthier, Bujard) was appointed and met multiple times to reflect on the lessons learnt in the Pilot (including breakoffs, etc.), introduce amendments to the questionnaire to correct some errors, take into account feedback from Users, and introduce some elements of innovations. It also endorsed the idea of making it possible for national teams to include a few country-specific questions which could be added to the core questionnaire. The resulting core questionnaire (version 3.0) was then discussed and adopted by the GGP Consortium Board in December 2019.

- c. The adopted questionnaire then entered an extended period of testing including internal testing by the GGP central Hub team, testing by Partners, external testing by a survey agency, and consultation with Users. During each of these phases amendments were introduced including to the wording, coding, and filters. During this time, the questionnaire was used in Moldova (2020).
  - d. A second Questionnaire Task Force was then appointed in 2019 (Lappegard, Lugtig, Luck, Makay, Gauthier) with a view towards approving the final amendments (step c). However during this time, the Task Force also decided to devote time to the length of the questionnaire especially in view of the fact that several countries were planning to carry the survey online. With a history of Face-to-Face mode of data collection, the average duration (around 52 minutes) had never been the focus of extensive discussion. This was also not the focus of the Push-to-Web Pilot (referred to above). The Task Force was unanimous in that the questionnaire was too long, especially for a web version. This sentiment was also echoed during the GGP Council of Partners meeting of June 2020. The Task Force met multiple times to tackle the issue. This was particularly difficult work in view of the history of the questionnaire (where all sections and subsections had a clear purpose). At the end, the Task Force agreed on a set of cuts which preserved the integrity of the version 3.0 questionnaire, but did introduce cuts in some of the long sections (e.g. Values and Attitudes), and sections which were deemed particularly demanding for the respondents.
- Phase IV: The new Baseline questionnaire (version 3.0.7):
- The questionnaire included in this document is the integral version in the sense that it contains the questions that have been marked for deletion (see explanation above), and some as being optional. They have been kept here in order to have a proper record of the changes introduced and also because they have been used in some countries. To facilitate the use, all amendments have been marked using a colour-scheme. The shorter version (3.1.0) excludes the questions marked for deletion.

Important remarks and colour-scheme

Optional questions in blue

This questionnaire contains optional questions which can be added to the national surveys or left out. They concern:

- Items related to the Theory of Planned Behaviour for fertility. Specifically, the items FER25, FER26, and FER27 can either be deleted entirely or shortened by deleting items FER25g and FER25h as well as FER26 (items c, d, g and i).
- Items related to the SDG 5.6.1. These are important but sensitive, We encourage their inclusion but countries have to take extra measures in view of their sensitivity. Specifically these are items FER28, FER29 and WEL02a.
- The variable INCO4 is also optional. It is a useful multi-item question to capture social exclusion. However, to shorten the questionnaire it can be omitted.

Deleted questions in light grey

This version of the questionnaire contains questions which were asked in some countries but were deleted and will not be asked in subsequent data collections. They are highlighted in light grey.

Filter commands

The questionnaire below is coded using the software BLAISE. We have kept here all the commands including the filters. Some of them may be complex to understand without having access to the full Blaise-coded file. Note for example that an if-command introduces a filter which is applied to the question following the filter. For example, if DEM03 = yes (The respondent was born in this country), DEM04a is asked (see p. 3). The command ENDIF ends the if-command that was introduced before the question. It therefore removes the filter from the subsequent questions.

Item non-response

Note that this version of the questionnaire does not display the answer categories Don't know and Refuse which are included as possible answers in case of the majority of questions.

Green highlights

They refer to external lists (e.g. occupational codes). The Occupation Lists were developed for the Survey of Health, Ageing and Retirement in Europe and in conjunction with the Wage Indicator Survey. These lists are already translated, aligned with ISCO 08 and are available here: <https://www.surveycodings.org/occupation-measurement>.

Country-specific questions

The new Baseline questionnaire allows national teams to add if they desire a few questions. Ideally these should appear as a “block” of questions together towards the end of the questionnaire.

Blaise code

The questionnaire has been coded using the Blaise software. All codes and syntax below are Blaise-specific.

About the FER section

Note that the section starts with the variation on fertility intention (FER14). In the past, this section used to start with a question about whether or not the respondent was pregnant (FER01). In this new version of the questionnaire, the information about whether or not the respondent is pregnant is instead a response category in FER14. The information on pregnancy from FER14 is used to construct additional variables (FER01a-c). Later in the questionnaire, there are filters based on these constructed variables, e.g.:

(IF (((FER01a = yes)OR(FER01b = yes))OR(FER01c = yes))

This filter implies that the subsequent questions are asked to respondents who are either female, below 50 and pregnant (FER01=yes); male or female of all ages with a pregnant, female partner below 50 (FER01b=yes); or men of all ages without a partner or a male partner who are currently expecting a child (FER01c=yes).

A list of further constructed variables can be found in the appendix (p. 94).

Special annotations

At several places in the questionnaire the code “CollectionMember” is used. This refers to the answer the respondent provided in a previous question, for example the name of the partner or the working place.

Response categories that may have to be adjusted by countries

The intent of the new questionnaire is to maximize cross-national comparability. Countries are consequently not allowed to modify questions and answer categories. The only exception are the income question (where the income groups and currency need to be adjusted) and the education questions.

This survey is about family, work and everyday life. Your answers will help us understand the complexities of today's families and the reality of people at different stages of their life. Our aim is to better understand, for example, what influences people's decision to have children or how they share household chores in couples. The results will be used to advise policy-makers on how to improve issues such as work-life balance, social relationships between generations and gender equality. Your participation is voluntary. If you don't want to answer any of the questions as some of them deal with sensitive topics, you are free to skip these at any point by choosing the response option 'refuse'. We will remove all personal identifiers from the data and ensure that your answers are only accessed by authorized and verified researchers for scientific purposes.
