ACADEMIC LIBRARIES

Key and Performance indicators

– 2013-2016 –
a comparative study

How do the academic libraries in Europe face

- research evolutions,
- teaching/learning new models
- the strong growing number of students ?

14 countries, more than 200 data and about 20 key indicators

European HER libraries indicators a comparative study turns into a project

As we are facing Research evolutions and Teaching/learning new models, a strong increase in students' number is observed everywhere in Europe. This trend will most probably continue in the coming years, increasing the pressure on Academic libraries in increasing. Facing a particularly strong situation in student increase, The French HER libraries Executives association (ADBU) took the initiative to launch a European comparative study on Key and Performance indicators in Academic Libraries over the 2013-2016 period.

Libraries buildings and equipment, space and seats per student, opening days and hours, frequentation rate, library services, users training, staff per student / documentary budgets / total expenditure, staff training, documentation loans / consultation / downloads, in both relative and absolute value.

These first observations should be updated in the years to come (and as of 2017), in collaboration with our European partners, with indicators that are more coherent between countries, or enriched, notably to try to better assess the contribution of libraries in student success or research performance.
