Blossoms burst, blast, and bask.
With every bloom, new horizons embark.
Living boldly, like birds singing song
In the springtime of life, I come along.

Amber rays dance with giggles and play,
Where joy spills over in endless display.
Carefree moments, a spirit unbound,
In the warmth of the sun, my fun is found.

Leaves scraping, painting paths of gold,
Yet despite their fall, hope takes hold.
The brisk, crisp, earthy, and sweet cool air,
Through these scents, I sense what's fair.

Snowflakes touch in a gentle caress,
Kindling the child within my space.
With wonder and whimsy, the snow delights,
As the kid in me shines through frosty nights.
