Terms and Conditions of Use

Welcome to JSTOR, a digital library and platform for research located at jstor.org ("JSTOR Platform"). JSTOR also offers library collection management services (with the JSTOR Platform, referred to as the "Services"). JSTOR is a part of ITHAKA, a not for profit organization. Your use of the Services is subject to the following Terms and Conditions of Use ("T&C").

These T&C apply to individuals as well as institutions that license access to Services, including colleges, universities, secondary schools, public libraries, museums, foundations, government agencies, research centers, corporate/for-profit organizations and scholarly societies ("Institutional Licensee") or a consortium representing designated Institutional Licensees ("Consortia Licensee"). Institutional Licensees and Consortia Licensees may have variations of these T&C in their license agreement, which will supersede any difference in these T&C. If you have any questions about your Institutional Licensee's license agreement please contact your librarian.

1 Who can use JSTOR?

Our "Authorized Users" are:

a. People with access through an Institutional Licensee. This includes i) walk-in users (people allowed to access the Services while on site at an Institutional Licensee) and ii) the following remote users:

- current students
- affiliated researchers and lecturers
- staff, including faculty, librarians, and administrators

- patrons of a public library or museum that has licensed remote access when JSTOR is able to offer this option
- members of a scholarly society
- alumni with a degree from an Institutional Licensee if that Institutional Licensee has added alumni to their license. Access will be for the content JSTOR includes in the alumni access license.

b. People who directly access the Services. This includes people who:

- register for a free, individual account that provides access to a limited number of available read-only JSTOR Collection Content items (defined below) for fixed periods of time ("Read Only Users");
- subscribe to our JPASS service, which provides unlimited read-only access to certain JSTOR Collection Content (defined below) and a limited number of downloaded content items per month ("JPASS Users");
- use JSTOR's related Constellate service as described in Section 3 below; and/or
- access openly available content on JSTOR, including Early Journal Content, the Open JSTOR Collection, and relevant parts of Shared Collection (defined in Section 3 below). ("Open Content Users").

2 What Services does JSTOR offer?

The Services include:

a. Content: JSTOR offers access to many types of scholarly content (referred to as "Content"), including:

i. JSTOR Collection: The following content selected by JSTOR's editors to be included in JSTOR, with access limited to Authorized Users who have a license to view this Content. The parts of the JSTOR Collection that you have a license to access are referred to as "JSTOR Licensed Content":

- "Books": electronic books in whole or in part, such as book chapters.
- "JSTOR Archive Collections Content": journal volumes and issues.
- "Primary Source Materials": World Heritage Sites: Africa; Struggles for Freedom: Southern Africa; 19th Century British Pamphlets; and Global Plants collections; and any other primary source materials curated by JSTOR.

ii. Open JSTOR Collection: JSTOR editors have selected the following content to include in an open model, where access is available to any Authorized Users who agree to these Terms and Conditions of Use:

- "Early Journal Content": journal content published prior to the last ninety-five years in the United States or prior to the last one hundred forty-three years if initially published internationally. For example, this means that in 2025, Early Journal Content will include content published prior to 1930 in the United States and prior to 1882 internationally.
- "Open Access Content": books, journals, primary source materials, as well as grey literature, including but not limited to research reports, white papers, working papers, policy papers, government documents, and newsletters.
- "Reveal Digital Content": collections curated by Reveal Digital editors consisting of periodicals, newspapers and other historical materials for which JSTOR has obtained rights holders permission and/or which is being made available in reliance on fair use and/or other provisions of the United States Copyright or other laws.

ITHAKA websites, which ITHAKA manages from its location in the United States, use cookies for different purposes, such as to ensure web site function, display non-targeted ads, provide social media features, and track usage, engaging with third party service providers as described in our Cookie Notice. To opt out of the use of cookies for non-essential purposes, please see your preferences in your account settings. Your use of ITHAKA websites, including your use after changes to this notice are posted, signifies your assent to ITHAKA's Terms and Conditions of Use, including applicable boilerplate related to boilerplate, boilerplate, boilerplate, iii. Artstor Collection and Open Artstor Collection: The following collections consisting of image-based material selected by Artstor editors to include on the JSTOR Platform ("Artstor Content").

- "Artstor Collection": Artstor Content that is made available to Authorized Users of Institutional Licensees who have a license to view this Content.
- "Open Artstor Collection": Artstor Content that is made available on a free-of-charge basis.

iv. Shared Collection and Individual Uploads:

- "Shared Collection Content" is content, such as images, videos, audio files, texts, cataloging information, graphics, and all other materials contributed by Institutional Licensees and Authorized Users acting on their behalf and/or at their direction ("Shared Collection Contributor") in connection with JSTOR Digital Stewardship Services, described below. Note: JSTOR does not screen, select, or clear the rights to Shared Collection Content. Shared Collection Content includes content published to the JSTOR Platform, in the following categories selected by each Shared Collection Contributor:
  - "Open Shared Collection Content": Shared Collection Content that is open to all Authorized Users of JSTOR.
  - "Institutional Shared Collection Content": Shared Collection Content that is limited to the Authorized Users of the contributing Institutional Licensee.
- "Individual Uploads": Content that is uploaded by an individual Authorized User ("Individual Contributor") with access limited to such Individual Contributor or, at the Individual Contributor's direction, other Authorized Users at their institution who have a link to access the content. Individual Contributors are directly responsible for their Individual Uploads.

b. JSTOR Digital Stewardship Services: JSTOR offers JSTOR Digital Stewardship Services for Institutional Licensees that choose to license these services and their Authorized Users acting on their behalf, as described in the license agreement between Institutional Licensee and JSTOR. JSTOR Digital Stewardship Services includes Services for collection management, processing, and publishing as well as to access non-downloadable software tools provided by JSTOR through the JSTOR Platform (such tools referred to as "JSTOR Collection Management Software").

3 What can I do with Content?

a. You may use Content for research activities, including downloading or printing Content in reasonable amounts for non-commercial, scholarly purposes, and in the following ways (so long as you follow the prohibited uses in Section 4 below) (collectively the "Permitted Uses"). Note: once you download or print allowed types and amounts of Content, you may continue to retain and use that Content in accordance with these Terms and Conditions of Use:

- in a classroom or other group instruction setting (for example, a discrete handout or projection of a Content item within a classroom setting);
- in student assignments, educational presentations, and student or faculty curatorial portfolios (in ways content is typically incorporated into those types of academic works), or in research papers or dissertations, including reproductions of the dissertations (provided such reproductions do not include Books, and are only for personal use, library deposit, and/or use solely within your Institutional Licensee);
- sharing parts of Content with other individuals for the purposes of collaboration and discussion (for example, sending an individual Content item to a fellow scholar for the purpose of collaboration on a research project);
- if you are an author or other creator of a journal article in JSTOR Collection Content, incorporating your article into other databases or websites as long as you have any prior permission that may be needed from the publisher and/or other rights holders;

ITHAKA websites, which ITHAKA manages from its location in the United States, use cookies for different purposes, such as to ensure web site function, display non-targeted ads, provide social media features, and track usage, engaging with third party service providers such as Google Analytics. You may manage non-essential cookies in "Cookie Settings". For more information, please see our Cookie Policy (https://www.ithaka.org/cookies).

- linking, specifically including stable URLs JSTOR provides for each Content item outside of the JSTOR Platform to facilitate or direct access (for example, incorporating a link to an assigned Content item into an online syllabi);

- use JSTOR's related Constellate service, on its platform https://constellate.org/ (https://constellate.org/) for certain types of text and data analysis specified in the Terms and Conditions of Use for the Constellate platform. The Constellate service includes content from several platforms including select JSTOR Content.

- for JSTOR Collection Content, interlibrary loan ("ILL"), specifically, requests your library makes on your behalf to another Institutional Licensee for an item within that collection. Institutional Licensees may fulfill such requests via secure means provided that such use is not at a volume that would substitute for a subscription to the journal or acquisition of access to a Book (for example, ILL of a Book will be restricted to a single copy of the requested Book chapter(s)); and

- use in accordance with the principles of fair use under Section 107 of the United States Copyright Act (https://www.copyright.gov/title17/92chap1.html#107) except as follows:

    - For Artstor Collection: Institutional Licensees and Authorized Users make such fair use, at their own sole risk (such that JSTOR will not be liable for any uses they make of Artstor Collection in reliance on fair use including, but not limited to, and despite any language to the contrary in Section 9(a) below).

    - For Reveal Digital Content: JSTOR does not take a position on whether additional use of the content beyond these Terms and Conditions of Use or Creative Commons license if applicable (as mentioned in Section 3(b) below) may be permitted under United States copyright law or other laws. Users who decide to make such uses do so at their own risk. Users expressly acknowledge and agree that JSTOR will not be liable in any way for any uses they make of the Reveal Digital Content without securing copyright holder permission, whether or not such use is made in reliance on fair use and/or other provisions of the United States copyright or other intellectual property rights laws.

    - For Shared Collection Content: JSTOR takes no position as to whether Shared Collection Content may be used pursuant to the fair use, educational exceptions or other similar provisions of the copyright laws or other intellectual property rights laws in the United States.

b. You may be able to make broader use of the following types of Content:

- Early Journal Content. You are free to copy, use, and redistribute the Early Journal Content in part or in whole for non-commercial purposes. Please acknowledge JSTOR as the source of the Early Journal Content by either linking directly to the JSTOR site using the stable URL for the Content item or, if using the Early Journal Content offline, by stating "Courtesy of JSTOR."

- Open JSTOR Collection, Open Artstor Collection, and Shared Collection. The Open JSTOR Collection, the Open Artstor Collection, and Open Shared Collection Content may have terms of a Creative Commons license or other rights statement or license indicated in the copyright statement or metadata for the content and, if so, you may make whatever use those licenses or rights statements allow. Note: Shared Collection Contributors have the choice to select and apply a license or rights statement to their Shared Collection content as long as such license or rights statement does not impose any obligations, liability, or restrictions of any kind on JSTOR.

4 What use of JSTOR and its Content and Services is prohibited?

To make sure JSTOR respects the permissions it receives from its contributors and to ensure the JSTOR Platform and Services operate reliably without any overburden on its servers, Institutional Licensees and users may not engage in the following (unless expressly permitted by a license or rights statement for Early Journal Content, Open JSTOR Collection Content, Open Artstor Content, or Shared Collection Content):

ITHAKA websites, which ITHAKA manages from its location in the United States, use cookies for different purposes, such as to ensure web site function, display non-targeted ads, provide social media features, and track usage, engaging with third party service providers such as Google Analytics. - use or authorize the use of the Services, JSTOR Collection Management Software, or any Content for commercial purposes or gains, such as selling access to the Services, JSTOR Services, or any part of the Content. For JSTOR Collection content, this does not include research that may later be incorporated into something sold, for example, a book containing academic research. Artstor Content may not be used in commercially distributed materials (such as works published by a scholarly or commercial press);

- except for the Permitted Uses of sharing for collaboration or discussion or an author disseminating their own articles as described above, provide and/or authorize access to the Content or JSTOR Collection Management Software to people or entities other than Authorized Users, including but not limited to by incorporating Content items into open websites or databases;

- except as explicitly stated in the Permitted Uses stated above, use Content to train large language models or other generative AI technologies;

- make available JSTOR Licensed Content or Artstor Collection Content in a manner that would substitute for direct access to such content on the JSTOR Platform;

- use JSTOR Collections Management Software, JSTOR AI Features (defined in Section 7.d below), or other JSTOR Services to create or offer similar services and features;

- attempt to override, circumvent, or disable any encryption features or software protections employed by the JSTOR Platform or JSTOR Collection Management Software (for example, download restrictions for Read Only Users or JPASS Users);

- undertake any activity that automatically downloads or exports Content, including activities involving web scraping, web harvesting, web data extraction, or other methods used to automatically extract data from websites;

- systematically print out, download, reproduce or distribute (or collaborate with others to systematically print out, download, reproduce or distribute) significant portions or a bulk of the Content, including but not limited to, downloading or printing substantial portions of a run of a journal, a collection contained within Artstor Collection, or stocking or replacing print holdings;

- include copies of Content items directly in course packs, electronic reserves, repositories, or organizational intranets;

- for Artstor Collection, make any adaptation or modification of, or derivative work of an Artstor Collection item(s), unless such activity is done solely for teaching or learning purposes in a classroom setting or coursework for an Institutional Licensee's Authorized Users;

- modify, obscure, or remove any copyright notice or other attribution included in the Content;

- alter or modify any part of JSTOR Collection Management Software; access Shared Collection Content through any technology or means other than JSTOR Collection Management Software explicit means designated by JSTOR; modify, build upon, or block any portion or functionality of JSTOR Collection Management Software and/or JSTOR Platform; or use JSTOR Collection Management Software for the purpose of collecting or storing third-party personal information.

- upload, reproduce, transmit or distribute or cause JSTOR Collection Management Software or JSTOR Platform features to upload, reproduce, transmit, or distribute any software viruses, malware, ransomware, or other computer code, files, or programs designed to interrupt, destroy, degrade, or limit the functionality of any computer software, hardware, data, system, or telecommunications equipment;

- intentionally disrupt JSTOR Collection Management Software or the JSTOR Platform, servers, or networks;

- violate or infringe third-party rights, or applicable law or regulation, including regarding using Content, contributing Shared Collection Content, use of JSTOR Collection Management Software, or use of JSTOR AI Features (defined in Section 7.d below);

- engage in spamming or other large-scale actions that circumvent file size or volume limits that may be applied to JSTOR Collection Management Software;

- attempt to override, circumvent, or disable any encryption features or software protections within JSTOR Collection Management Software or JSTOR Platform;

- directly or indirectly disassemble, decrypt, electronically scan, decompile, or otherwise reverse engineer or attempt to reverse engineer or derive any source code from JSTOR Collection Management Software or JSTOR Platform features or permit, assist, or encourage any third party to do so; or

- make any use, display, performance, reproduction, or distribution that exceeds or violates these Terms and Conditions of Use.

5 How does JSTOR ensure ongoing access to Content?

JSTOR provides for long-term preservation and access to scholarly materials for certain Content.

- Archiving of JSTOR Archive Collections Content. JSTOR provides long term preservation of the JSTOR Archive Collections, supported by an endowment, redundant storage and multiple back-up files. For items in the JSTOR Archive Collections Content that have print editions, JSTOR also has a dedicated repository at a participating institution to house and preserve the print copies under archival-quality conditions. For JSTOR Licensed Content, access will be available as long as a license is in effect and any applicable fees have been paid.

- Perpetual Access for Books. If an Institutional Licensee cancels or does not renew its Institutional Participation Agreement, JSTOR will provide access to the content of any previously licensed Books through either, at JSTOR's choice, JSTOR or its related service Portico.

- Ongoing Access to Artstor Collection. JSTOR intends to consistently maintain and make available the Artstor Collection or, if exigent circumstances require work to transfer the Artstor Collection to another nonprofit institution that will grant similar access (noting JSTOR will not be liable if such transfer is not made). On termination of a license to the Artstor Collection, i) all online access to Artstor Collection Content will end and ii) Institutional Licensees will destroy such content from its servers within 60 days of termination, taking reasonable steps to notify its Authorized Users of the termination of access. Following termination, Authorized Users may keep print or electronic copies of Artstor Collection Content for use consistent with these Terms and Conditions of Use including the permitted uses described in Section 3.

- Preservation of Shared Collection Content. If an Institutional Licensee has elected to preserve their Shared Collection Content or other content and materials in Portico's digital preservation service ("Preserved Collections"), this content will be preserved for as long as the Institutional Licensee continues to license that service.

6 What are my responsibilities to JSTOR?

a. Security. Authorized Users opening user accounts are responsible for maintaining security of their usernames and/or passwords and for use or activity made through their account. Institutional Licensees are responsible for reasonably limiting access to the JSTOR Licensed Content, Artstor Collection Content, and JSTOR Collection Management Software to valid and current Authorized Users, reasonably protecting the Content from unpermitted use, and working with JSTOR to implement its user authentication processes.
    - PEP Device (if applicable): A prison education or prison library program that licenses JSTOR access will also provide Authorized Users with the hardware and software necessary to do so at no charge to the Authorized Users. If you are an Authorized User of a prison education or prison library program and have been charged for equipment needed to access JSTOR, please let JSTOR know at support@jstor.org (mailto:support@jstor.org).

b. Unpermitted Use. Institutional Licensees or Authorized Users who become aware of unpermitted use of the Services or JSTOR Collection Management Software or a security breach affecting access to the Services or JSTOR Collection Management Software must notify JSTOR and work with JSTOR cooperatively to resolve the problem. If there is an unauthorized use or a violation of these Terms and Conditions of Use, JSTOR may, with Institutional Licensee's assistance when requested and practicable, suspend or terminate access to a specific user, IP address(es), or other authorization and authentication mechanisms used for the unauthorized use. If reasonably possible, JSTOR will contact the Institutional Licensee prior to suspending or terminating access. JSTOR will restore access promptly once the matter is resolved.

c. Individual Contributors Individual Contributors grant JSTOR a worldwide, non-exclusive, royalty-free, and transferable license to use, incorporate, reproduce, distribute, prepare derivative works of, display, perform, publish, and make available the Individual Uploads as directed by the Individual Contributor.

d. Posted Material. If you are an individual Authorized User and/or Individual Contributor and submit material and/or post comments on or through the JSTOR Platform, you will not upload or otherwise publish any materials that: (i) violate copyright, other intellectual property or third party rights or are libelous or defamatory; (ii) violate laws or regulations; (iii) violate JSTOR's Community Guidelines (https://about.jstor.org/community-guidelines/), available at https://about.jstor.org/community-guidelines; (iv) contain a virus, spyware, or other harmful component; or (v) are intended for advertising purposes. JSTOR may edit, remove or modify any material or comments that you submit or post or and use such material or comments if you make them publicly available.

7 What level of service does JSTOR provide?

a. JSTOR reasonably provides 24/7 availability of the JSTOR Platform subject to periodic downtime for maintenance or updates to the server, platform, or equipment ("Maintenance Downtime"). If JSTOR fails to provide online availability for more than 72 hours during any period of 30 consecutive calendar days Institutional Licensee may ask in writing for (i) a refund or a credit of a prorated part of its annual access fee for such 30-day period or (ii) termination of its applicable Institutional Participation Agreement. If you experience any issue with the Services, please contact us at http://support.jstor.org (http://support.jstor.org/).

b. JSTOR may occasionally withdraw JSTOR Collection Content, Open JSTOR Collection Content, or Artstor Content for a good cause, such as a legal claim regarding a specific item of such Content. JSTOR will try to minimize any inconveniences caused by such withdrawals but will not be liable for such withdrawals. For Institutional Licensees licensing JSTOR Collection Content or Artstor Collection Content, if JSTOR withdraws a material amount of such Content, Institutional License may ask in writing for a prorated refund or credit of its annual access fee under its applicable Institutional Participation Agreement or termination of its Institutional Participation Agreement without penalty. Individual Uploads or Shared Collection Content may be withdrawn by the contributor or by JSTOR as described in these Terms and Conditions of Use.

c. JSTOR will reasonably support industry standards and best practices for online information delivery as follows:

- the JSTOR Collection and Open JSTOR Collection may be produced by digitizing print textual material and is reasonably a complete and faithful replication of the print version of the Content in these collections;

- the JSTOR Platform and JSTOR Collection Management Software comply with Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act and W3C WAI WCAG 2.2 Level AA to the extent stated in the accessibility conformance reports contained within our Voluntary Product Accessibility Template documentation at http://about.jstor.org/accessibility/ (http://about.jstor.org/accessibility/), with the understanding that (i) Primary Source Materials include a large number heavily visual forms of content where JSTOR will provide a magnification feature in an image viewer or, if that does not suffice, the metadata regarding such images; (ii) Reveal Digital Content contains scanned primary source materials that may be in partial compliance; (iii) Artstor Content consists of images and materials as they are contributed by third parties that intend to convey a specific sensory experience; certain web pages displaying Artstor Content may have only informational, rather than descriptive, alt text, and captions may not be available for video content; and (iv) Shared Collection Content and Individual Uploads may be in partial conformance, as the accessibility of such content is the responsibility of the third-party contributor and is outside of JSTOR's control (although Shared Collection Contributors agree to make reasonable efforts to ensure their Shared Collection Content complies with these standards).

ITHAKA websites, which ITHAKA manages from its location in the United States, use cookies for different purposes, such as to ensure web site functionality and for performance analytics. Some cookies are placed by third party services published on our sites, for example, Google Analytics. You may manage non-essential cookies in "Cookie Settings". - the JSTOR Platform meets ANSI/NISO z39.88-2004 OpenURL standards and is compatible with the NISO Metasearch XML Gateway (MXG) protocol in development, XML and SRU/SRW search interfaces; and

- COUNTER-compliant usage statistics will be made available to Institutional Licensees. In addition, for Shared Collection Contributors, JSTOR will provide a usage dashboard or usage administrator tools in JSTOR Collection Management Software for usage statistics on their Shared Collection Content.

d. For any Services that indicate they incorporate Artificial Intelligence (AI) technologies ("JSTOR AI Features"), you understand and agree that: (i) JSTOR uses third-party AI Technology to make available JSTOR AI Features, meaning, among other things, that JSTOR AI Features are subject to the development, accuracy, and reliability of such third-party AI Technology; (ii) you have the necessary rights and permissions to use your input with the JSTOR AI Feature; (iii) output may not always be accurate, error-free, complete, or otherwise suitable for your use; (iv) output may contain language, concepts, or imagery that does not represent JSTOR's views; (v) if the input is Content, the output will also be considered to be within the definition of Content; and (vi) you are solely responsible for reviewing output (including via human review as appropriate) for accuracy and appropriateness for your use and ensuring that your use of output does not violate any applicable law (including laws that may require labeling and/or transparency that output has been generated by AI technology) or these T&C. You agree that JSTOR may use, incorporate, reproduce, distribute, prepare derivative works of, display, and make available input and output from JSTOR AI Features to i) provide you with the JSTOR AI Features and other Services; ii) develop and improve JSTOR AI Features solely to the extent consistent with JSTOR's non-profit mission; and iii) comply with applicable law.

8 What intellectual property rights apply?

a. The JSTOR Platform, JSTOR Collection Management Software, and Content. The JSTOR Platform, JSTOR Collection Management Software, PEP Devices, and any trademarks, issued patents and patent applications, copyrights and copyright registrations and applications, rights in ideas, designs, works of authorship, derivative works, and all other intellectual property rights (collectively, "Intellectual Property") relating to the JSTOR Platform, JSTOR Collection Management Software and PEP Devices are proprietary to JSTOR. All Intellectual Property related to the Content provided by JSTOR's participating libraries, universities, publishers, scholarly societies, and other Content contributors are proprietary to them (with permission to JSTOR to act on their behalf with respect to Content in JSTOR), subject to the rights of third parties.

b. JSTOR and Institutional Licensee Trademarks. JSTOR's and Institutional Licensee's names or trademarks may not be used without permission, with the following limited exceptions: (i) JSTOR may use Institutional Licensees' names and/or the names of their libraries alongside the names of other participants in brochures or other materials identifying institutions participating in its Services, and (ii) Institutional Licensees are encouraged to use JSTOR's or Artstor's name and logo to announce participation to Authorized Users and to train Authorized Users on the use of the Services. Neither party will imply endorsement of the other and JSTOR will not advertise its services using Institutional Licensee's names or trademarks independent of other Institutional Licensees.

c. DMCA Notifications. If you believe that content in the Primary Source Materials or Shared Collection violates your copyright or otherwise violates your rights, please send a written notice to JSTOR directed to the Office of the General Counsel, JSTOR, One Liberty Plaza, 165 Broadway, 5th, New York, NY, 10006 or send an email to the address listed at the U.S. Copyright Office DMCA Designated Agent Directory (https://dmca.copyright.gov/dmca/publish/history.html?search=JSTOR&id=dbcb0ee1086faac351a74a35d6f2b977). Please provide with your notice the following information, consistent with the Digital Millennium Copyright Act: (i) a signature of a person authorized to act on behalf of the copyright owner; (ii) identification of the copyrighted work(s) claimed to have been infringed; (iii) identification sufficient for JSTOR to locate the infringing material and information; (iv) your contact information including an address, e-mail address, and telephone number; (v) your statement that, in your good faith belief, use by the alleged infringing material is not authorized by the copyright owner, its agent, or the law; and (vi) a statement that the information in the notification is accurate and you are authorized to act on behalf of the applicable rightsholder. notification or learns of the claim from another source, JSTOR may remove such content while the claim is reviewed.

9 To what extent is JSTOR responsible for its Platform and the Content?

a. Representations and Warranties: Based on its arrangements with publishers, rightsholders, and other Content contributors, JSTOR represents and warrants to its knowledge, under the laws of the United States, use of the JSTOR Platform, Books and JSTOR Archive Collections Content by Authorized Users in accordance with these Terms and Conditions of Use will not infringe the copyright of any third party. With respect to Primary Source Materials and Artstor Collection Content, JSTOR represents and warrants it has made diligent efforts to either obtain permission from rightsholders and/or rely on U.S. fair use or similar provisions of copyright law in making such Content available. Thus, to its knowledge, use of Primary Source Materials and Artstor Collection Content will not infringe the copyright of any third party. In addition, Reveal Digital Content may be made available with the explicit permission of the copyright holder, assignee, or transferee for research and educational purposes, and/or are in reliance on fair use and/or other provisions of the United States copyright or other laws. JSTOR cannot make this representation and warranty for (i) the Shared Collection Content (as JSTOR does not screen, select, edit, or review Shared Collection Content for legal purposes, accuracy, or usefulness); (ii) any modifications or derivative works of the Content created by Institutional Licensees, Authorized Users, or by any third party (iii) any inputs or outputs from JSTOR AI Features; (iv) use of JSTOR or Content in violation of these Terms and Conditions of Use or (v) third-party rights besides copyright (such as rights of publicity and privacy) in the Early Journal Content (and users assume sole responsibility for obtaining such permission as may be needed). In addition, JSTOR makes no representation and warranty as to whether the Content will fit an Institutional Licensee's or Authorized User's purpose or requirements.

b. Indemnification by JSTOR: Except as otherwise stated in these terms, JSTOR agrees to indemnify Institutional Licensees against damages (including related legal fees and expenses) for copyright infringement arising out of use of the Primary Source Materials or Artstor Collection to the extent stated in 9(c) below. The indemnification will apply only if i) the Primary Source Materials and Artstor Collection content are used in accordance with these Terms and Conditions of Use; (ii) Institutional Licensee notifies JSTOR promptly of any such claim; and iii) JSTOR has sole control of the defense and/or settlement of the dispute, including with counsel of its choice and may join and/or consolidate multiple actions as may be appropriate (noting Institutional Licensee may participate in defense and/or settlement of the dispute at its sole cost). With respect to the Artstor Collection, this indemnity will apply only to uses, reproductions, displays, performances, or distributions made of the Artstor Collection Content within the United States.

c. Limitation of Liability: ITHAKA, on behalf of its services JSTOR and Portico, will not be liable to any individual or entity for any loss, injury, claim, liability, damages, costs, and/or attorneys' fees of any kind resulting from the unavailability, delays, or interruption of the Services, Content, or other JSTOR services. Institutional Licensees and Authorized Users agree not to hold ITHAKA liable for any losses or damages arising out of or in connection with their use of the Services or Content in violation of these Terms and Conditions of Use or for claims that the Content or AI output is not appropriate for their purpose or requirements. As a not-for-profit organization responsible for ensuring the long-term availability and access of Content, ITHAKA's liability to an Institutional Licensee will not exceed the fees paid by that Institutional Licensee for applicable collection(s) of Content for the term of the agreement then in effect. OTHER THAN ANY EXPRESS WARRANTIES STATED IN THIS SECTION 9, JSTOR, CONTENT, AI TECHNOLOGY AND OUTPUT, AND ALL OTHER INFORMATION, MATERIALS, ACCESS, SOFTWARE, OR ALL OTHER SERVICES (INCLUDING JSTOR DIGITAL STEWARDSHIP SERVICES) ARE PROVIDED ON AN "AS IS" BASIS, AND ITHAKA AND ANY AND ALL THIRD PARTY CONTENT, AI TECHNOLOGY, AND SOFTWARE PROVIDERS AND/OR LICENSORS ("CONTENT PROVIDERS") DISCLAIM ANY AND ALL OTHER WARRANTIES, CONDITIONS, OR REPRESENTATIONS OF ANY KIND (EXPRESS, IMPLIED, ORAL, OR WRITTEN) RELATING THERETO OR TO ANY PART THEREOF, INCLUDING WITHOUT LIMITATION, ANY AND ALL IMPLIED WARRANTIES OF QUALITY, PERFORMANCE, NON-INFRINGEMENT, ERRORS AND OMISSIONS, LIABILITY UNDER LIBEL LAWS, INFRINGEMENT OF RIGHTS OF PUBLICITY OR PRIVACY, APPROPRIATENESS OR SUBSTANCE OF CONTENT, MORAL RIGHTS, COMPATIBILITY, MERCHANTABILITY, OR FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR

10 How does JSTOR protect my personal information and keep its services secure?

We will use any personal information you give us in accordance with our ITHAKA Privacy Policy, which can be found at https://www.ithaka.org/privacypolicy/ (https://www.ithaka.org/privacypolicy/), as updated as our practices evolve. ITHAKA does not knowingly collect personal information from anyone under the age of 16 and, if it learns it has collected such personal information, promptly will delete that information.

With respect to security, ITHAKA has implemented physical, technical, and administrative safeguards intended to provide confidentiality, integrity, availability, and resilience of our systems for all its products and services, including JSTOR and Portico. Specifically, as stated in the ITHAKA Privacy Policy, ITHAKA adheres to SOC 2 information security standards for its products and services. For more details, please see our SOC 3 Report (https://www.ithaka.org/wp-content/uploads/2025/01/8545_ITHAKA-HARBORS-Inc._SOC_3_Report.pdf).

11 What other legal terms apply?

a. These Terms and Conditions of Use will be governed by the laws of the United States and any laws or conventions that might direct the application of the laws of another jurisdiction will not apply. If an Institutional Licensee is a United States public educational or government institution, i) the laws of Institutional Licensee's state will also apply and ii) any part of this Agreement that are invalid or unenforceable against such Institutional Licensee due to applicable, law will be interpreted in a manner most consistent with applicable governing law. In addition, the English language version of these Terms and Conditions of Use will control over any other language version.

b. If any provision of these Terms and Conditions of Use are held to be invalid, illegal, unenforceable, or in conflict with the law of any jurisdiction, all other provisions shall remain in full force and effect. A waiver of any breach of these Terms and Conditions of Use will not be deemed a waiver of other breaches of these Terms and Conditions of Use.

c. Neither JSTOR, Portico, nor Institutional Licensees or Authorized Users will be liable for failures or delays in performing their obligations pursuant to this contract arising from any cause beyond their control, including but not limited to, act of God, acts of civil or military authority, terrorism, fires, strikes, lockouts or labor disputes, epidemics, wars, riots, earthquakes, storms, typhoons and floods and in the event of any such delay, the time for either party's performance will be extended for a period equal to the time lost by reason of the delay. If the conditions giving rise to the delay continue beyond thirty (30) consecutive days, either party may terminate its agreement with the other by giving written notice to the other party.

d. JSTOR reserves the right to make reasonable modifications to these Terms and Conditions, or any aspect of the Services, to manage the changing needs of Institutional Licensees, Authorized Users, and Content providers and contributors. However, JSTOR intends that modifications will not materially reduce the scope of Permitted Uses set forth in Section 3 above. The latest version of these Terms and Conditions of Use will be available on the JSTOR website, and JSTOR will notify Institutional Licensees of material modifications via email. JSTOR aims to address concerns Institutional Licensees may have about modifications; if Institutional Licensee contacts JSTOR with any such concerns, JSTOR will make reasonable efforts to address those concerns, including signing an amendment to the Institutional Participation Agreement if the parties are able to agree to negotiated change(s). In addition, if Institutional Licensee determines JSTOR has not addressed its concern, it may terminate the Agreement by sending JSTOR 30 (thirty) days' written notice. If Institutional Licensee does not notify JSTOR of a concern within 60 (sixty) days from the time JSTOR emails notice of the modification, the modification will be considered effective between the parties.
