Organisational Culture

A pattern of shared basic assumptions that the group learned as it solved its problems of external adaptation and internal integration, that has worked well enough to be considered valid, and, therefore, to be taught to new members as the correct way to perceive, think and feel in relation to those problems.

(Schein, E.H. (2010) Organizational Culture and Leadership. Jossey-Bass, San Francisco, 437 p.)

UNIVERSITY of DEBRECEN

Culture: strong or weak?

High performance

- Clear and compelling vision, mission, goals and strategy
- Core values drive the culture and decision making
- Clear roles, responsibilities and success criteria
- Open, candid, transparent communication
- Teamwork, collaboration and involvement is the norm
- Willingness to change, adapt, learn from successes and mistakes, take reasonable risks and try new things

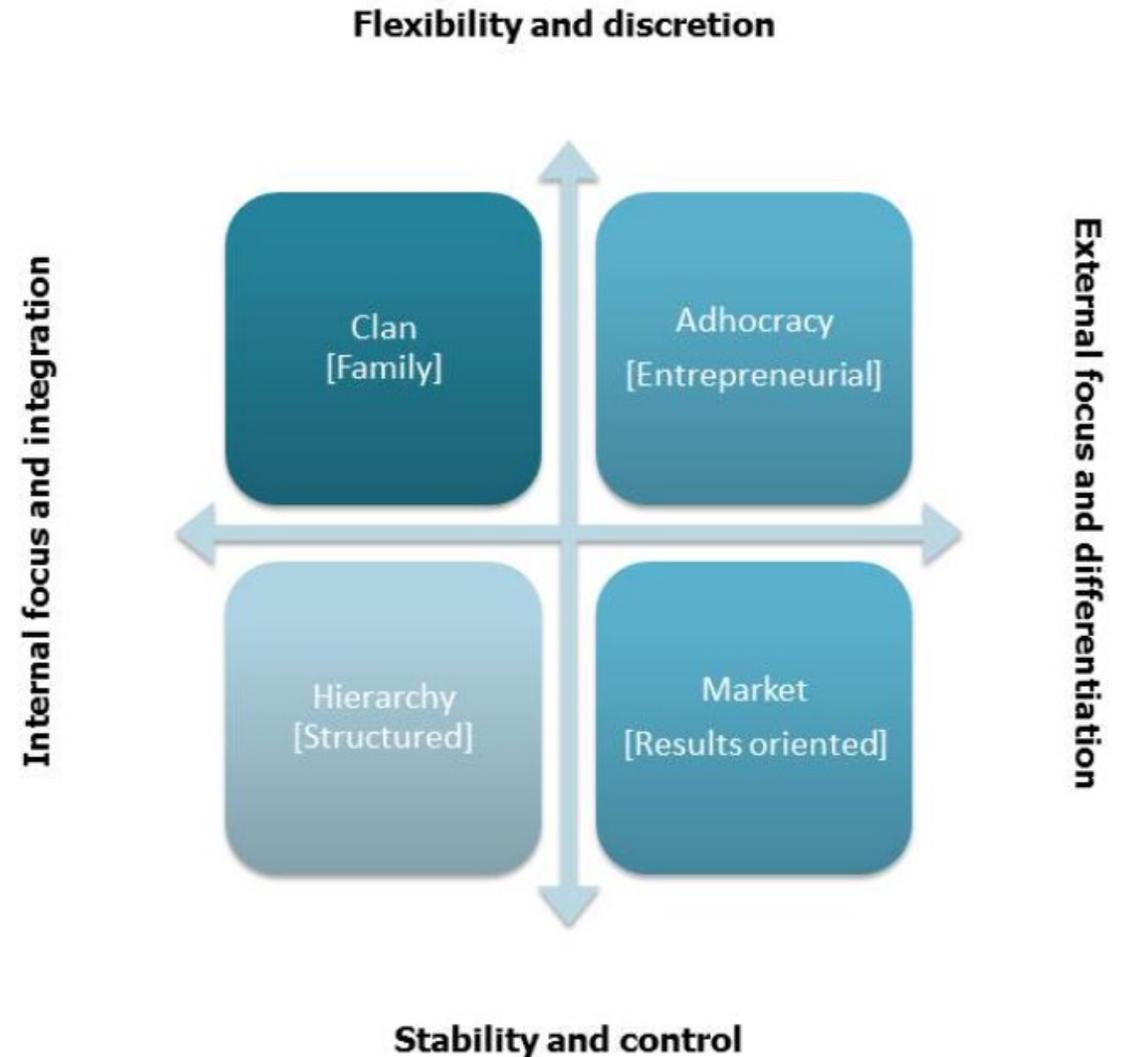

Low performance

- Vision, mission, goals and strategy are unclear, not used
- Core values are unclear, not used, do not exist
- Unclear roles and responsibilities
- Guarded communication
- Top-down decision making

Competing Values Framework (CVF)

- All values are present

Building trust = long term partnership, sustainability

- What are the norms and values that make libraries sustainable in the 21st century?
- What are the stakeholder/client/decision maker values?
- What are the values we share with stakeholders?
- Management values vs employee values?

Effective change management is built on a change of organisational culture

Building a high performing culture is key to building trust

University of Kent

University of Kent: 2019 snapshot.

- Established 1965 in Canterbury, with locations in Kent and Europe.
- 19,114 students and 3,411 staff in 2019.
- 159 nationalities represented in our student body, with 28.6% identifying as Black and Minority Ethnic (BME).
- 40% of our teaching and research staff from outside the UK.
- Gold rating in the Teaching Excellence Framework (TEF).
- 97% of our research is of international quality, up from 87% in 2008.

Key demographics

Collection Engagement Strategy: Visibility and impact through partnership.

Strategic aims.

1. Change how we communicate with our academic community.
2. Work in partnership with academic staff to build engagement through collection development and use.
3. Increase visibility and profile of Library Services, and their impact.

Impact:

- Shifted focus and nature of discussions with academic colleagues.
- Established principle that academic input and 'ownership' of collections is critical to effective partnership working.
- Resulted in increased collaborative activity with university wide projects to embed cultural change.

Times Higher Education
Awards 2019
Winner: Outstanding Library Team

Collaboration is key: Establish the common purpose.

Establishing the link between retention and belonging, the attainment gap and library collections.

- Retention, belonging and the attainment gap.
 - Student Success (EDI) Project, 2015 -
- Empowering the student voice.
 - Kent Union 'Diversify My Curriculum' campaign, 2016.
 - Recommending diverse texts for inclusion on academic reading lists.
- Finding the common purpose. 'See yourself on the shelf'.
 - Collaborative Diversity Mark pilot.

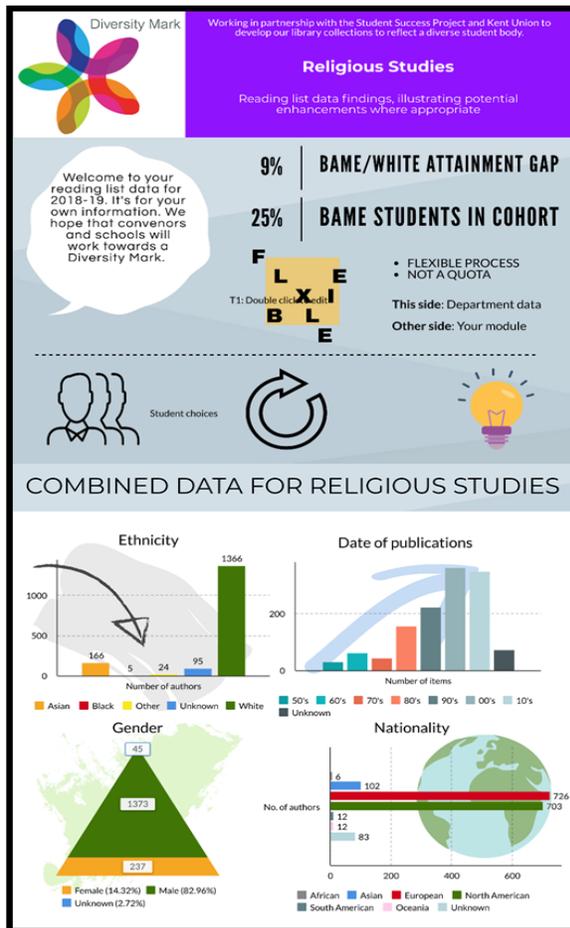

"The University should aim to diversify the content of its curriculum and make it more inclusive, starting with reviewing curricula to ensure that a range of ideas and academic thoughts are represented."

BME Student Voices Report, Kent Union 2017

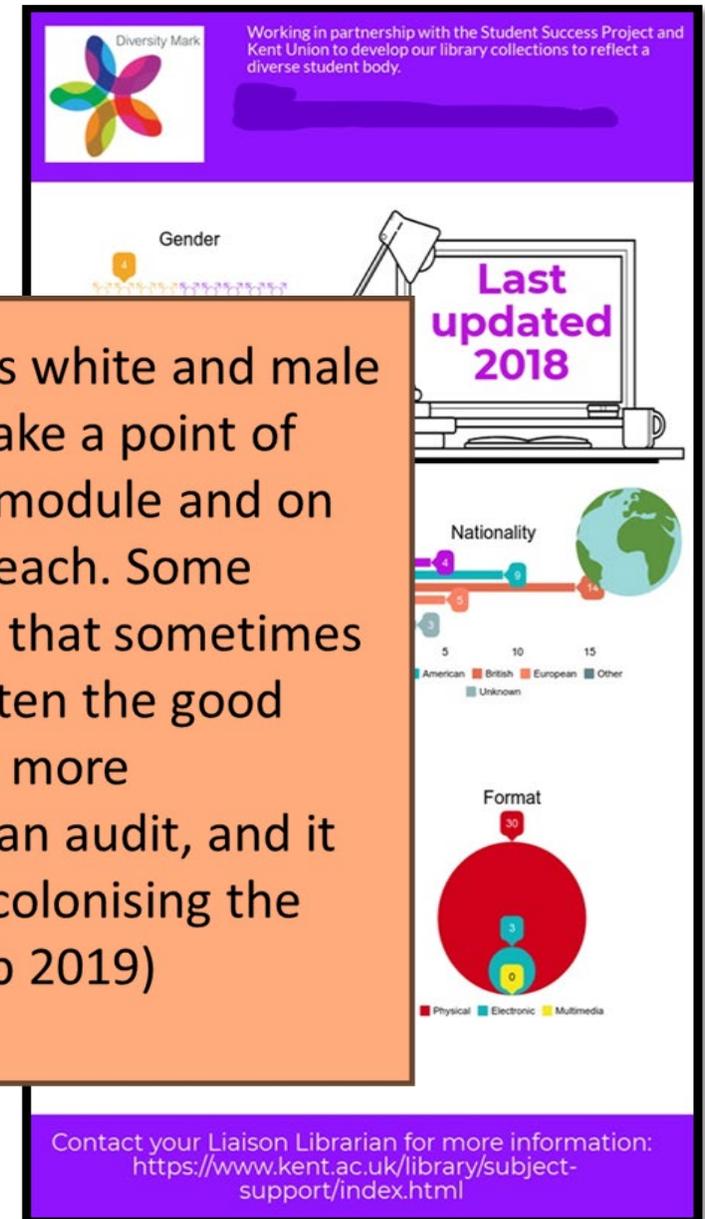

"Reading lists are a starting point for us to see where we can begin to make some changes, be more inclusive, and ultimately provide a better academic experience for everyone. "

(Module convenor, 2018)

Diversity Mark: Challenges, findings and emerging practices.

“I was surprised that my list was as white and male as it turned out to be, and I did make a point of mentioning it to students on that module and on another, final year module that I teach. Some shrugged their shoulders and said that sometimes it's only white men who have written the good books (!); others responded much more enthusiastically about the idea of an audit, and it led to a good discussion about decolonising the university.” (Module convenor, Feb 2019)

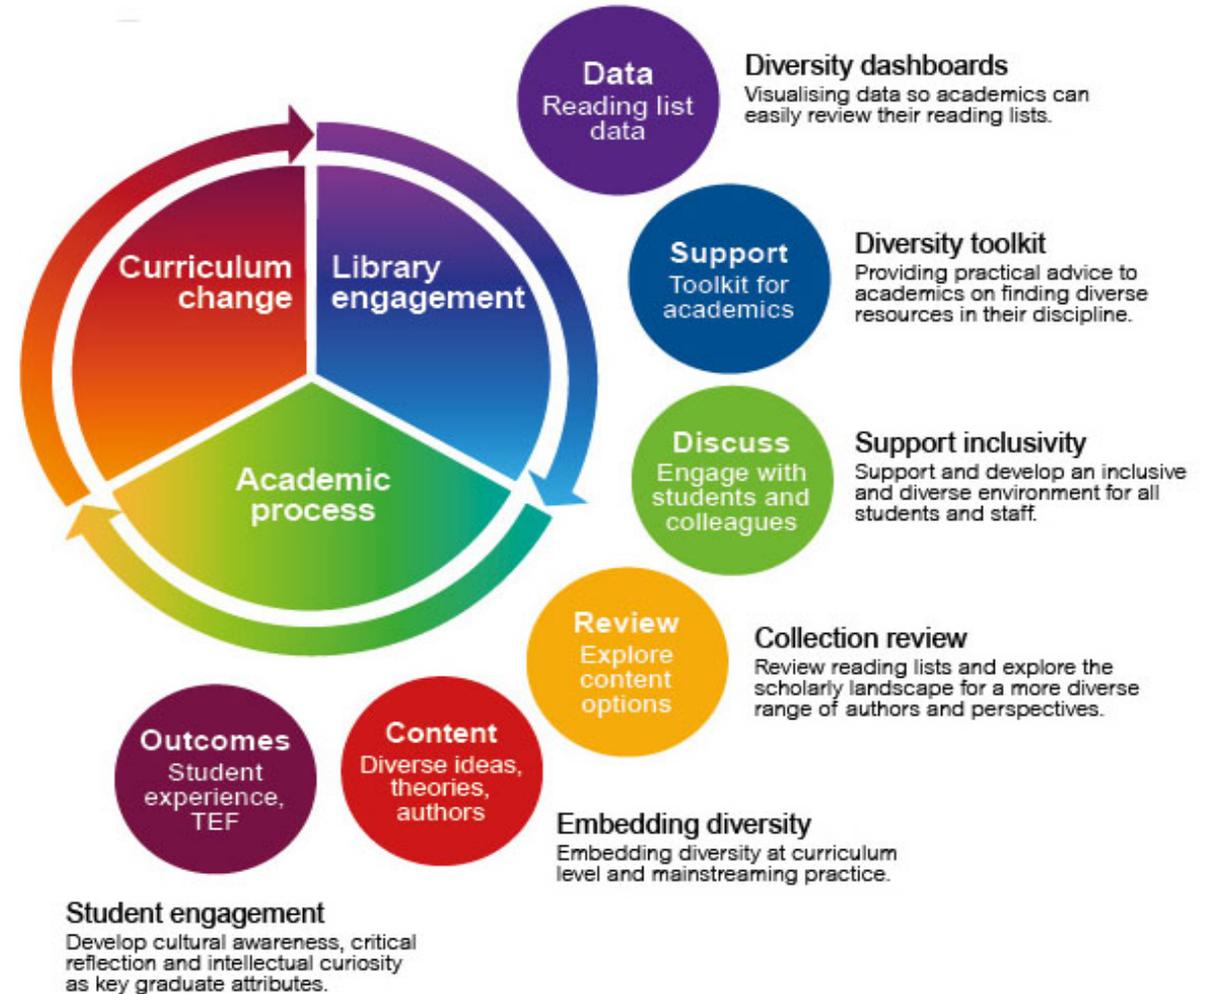

Diversity Mark: A process of review, reflection and co-creation.

Representing diverse perspectives and authors in your reading list leads to a more inclusive learning experience for students.

Research, both nationally and at the University of Kent, shows that reading lists that consider the diversity of the student body improve engagement and help to develop key graduate attributes. A minor change to your course materials could make a major change to the way a student, or a group of students, responds to the course.

Diversity Mark award

Diversity Mark is an institution-wide award that is given to those modules that can offer a diverse and inclusive range of resources for their students via their reading lists.

Diversity Mark:

Supporting a critical thinking and cultural competency pedagogy towards empowerment and belonging.

“There was a general consensus that students weren’t aware that contributing or changing the reading list was an option. There was also an assumption that the reading list was white British male-oriented and that’s just the way it is. The view was expressed that more representation could encourage more engagement given they know where the sources were coming from in the first place.” (Evangeline Agyeman, Social Sciences student)

“I believe without diversity; our perspectives will as a consequence be limited to a Eurocentric outlook, which does not display the critical thinking that we are so often encouraged to do at university level”
(Collins Konadu-Mensah, Social Sciences student)

Special Collections and Archives (SC&A): A snapshot.

Collection strengths include:

- Popular and comic performance.
 - British Stand Up Comedy Archive (BSUCA).
- Cartoon artwork and publications (political and social comment).
 - British Cartoon Archive.

SC&A sessions in 2019

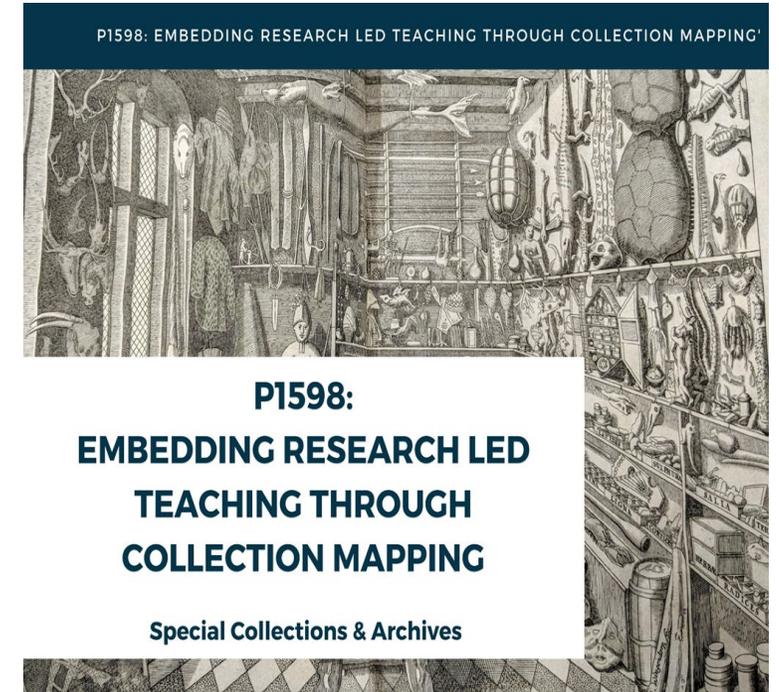

- History – 40 groups.
- English – 22 groups.
- Drama – 7 groups.
- Medieval and Early Modern Studies – 2 groups.

Special Collections and Archives (SC&A). Matrix and mapping.

Harnessing matrix team frameworks to engage academic schools and researchers.

- Project to map collections to related subjects.
- Ensure that researchers know what we hold.
- Support research-led teaching.
- Empower Academic Liaison Services (ALS) colleagues to develop their knowledge of SC&A collections.

Special Collections and Archives (SC&A): From mapping to research-led teaching.

- Making new connections between materials, collections and subjects taught.
 - Use of the British Stand Up Comedy Archive, extended beyond the Performing Arts to include postgraduate History modules.
- Student skills development, including critical analysis of the intent, value and purpose of items.
- Fostering a sense of belonging to the University, as many items cannot be found elsewhere.

100 ACTS OF MINOR DISSENT

Mark gave himself one year to commit 100 Acts of Minor Dissent – from 14 May 2013 to 13 May 2014 – if he failed he pledged to donate £1,000 to UKIP as his forfeit.

If he was successful he would stage an art exhibition of the show.

He committed 104 Acts which were officially counted on the 15th May 2014 at a show in the Leadmill in Sheffield.

The show lasted 5 hours, featured a performance of his play by Nottingham students and a set from Jonny and the Baptists.

Mark bought the audience chips.

Special Collections and Archives (SC&A):

Increased trust created through engaged partnership that generates mutual benefits.

‘Olly, secured the archive for the University – built trust with the department through liaison and teaching, introduced us to his network, works with us to secure the collection, works with us to understand what is in the collection, uses it in his teaching, works with us to curate exhibitions, consistently uses the collections to support his own teaching and research, students use the collections to inform their own performance.’

Special Collections and Archives Manager, 2020.

In conclusion.

Securing trust through collection engagement and transformation.

Thank you for listening.

A strategy describes the raison d'être of the organization, its values and norms and where the organization is heading for the next say 5 to 10 years.

The Strategy acts as lighthouse that a member of an organization may consult when in doubt where to go.

Research Libraries?

Visión

A Vision Statement

- [...] Is a company's road map, indicating what the company wants to become by setting a defined direction for the company's growth...
- [It] Is an organization's self centered, egoistic, selfish (in a positive and necessary sense) pleasure seeking goal, that directly attracts and motivates its employees
- [It should be a] catalyzer or action starter [...] placed in a first priority, before mission statement, because implementation of mission depends on vision [..]

• Wikipedia 20-5-2019

8 Vision Statement Criteria

1. Concise: able to be easily remembered and repeated
2. clear: defines a prime goal
3. Time horizon: defines a time horizon
4. future-oriented: describes where the company is going rather than the current state
5. stable: offers a long-term perspective and is unlikely to be impacted by market or technology changes
6. challenging: not something that can be easily met and discarded
7. abstract: general enough to encompass all of the organization's interests and strategic direction
8. inspiring: motivates employees and is something that employees view as desirable

Vision statement

The University Library of Southern Denmark is a research-based academic and educational library.

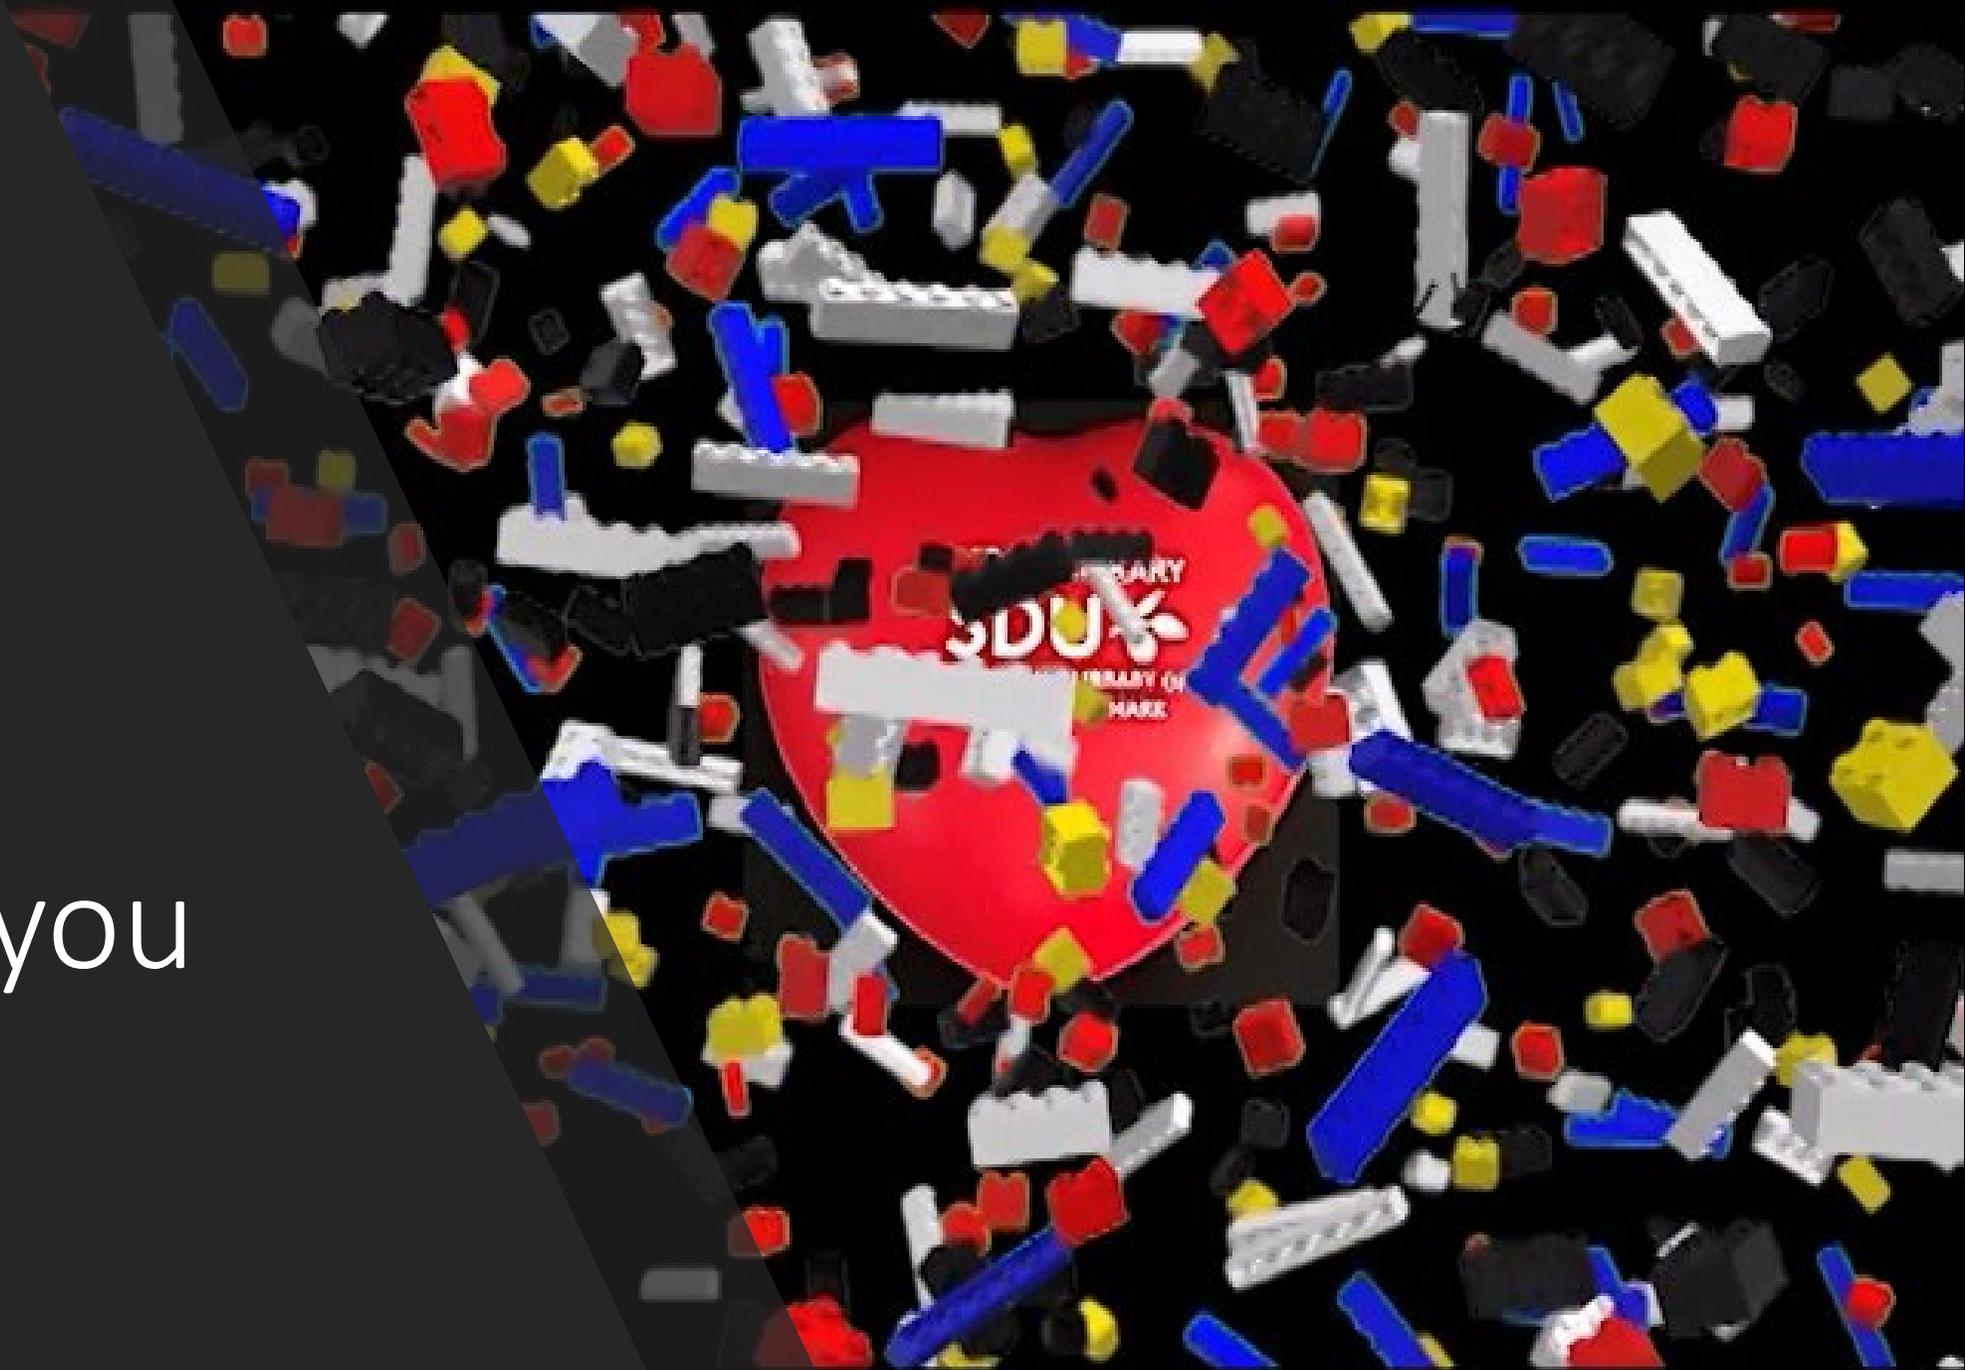

Therefore, we are three steps ahead of the other research libraries: “We practice what we teach” and our research provides an example to follow, in terms of openness, responsibility and fairness.

We are at the forefront of multidisciplinary innovation and our results can thus be used both inside and outside the library.
