“Open science is a means and not an ends. Open science strategies and policies are a means to support better quality science, increased collaboration, and engagement between research and society that can lead to higher social and economic impacts of public research.”

OECD (2015-10-15), “Making Open Science a Reality”, OECD Science, Technology and Industry Policy Papers, No. 25, OECD Publishing, Paris. <http://dx.doi.org/10.1787/5jrs2f963zs1-en>

Vyvíjajúce sa trendy a potreby zainteresovaných strán sú hnacou silou zmien v globálnom ekosystéme výskumu

Researcher experience

- An increasingly competitive and agile research environment requires new tools to mitigate information overload and enhance research efficacy
- New mandates from institutions and funders are increasing administrative tasks for researchers, resulting in multiple profiles and duplicative systems that take time away from research

Open research

- Open research is fundamentally changing workflows, putting more emphasis on transparency and the sharing of outputs (e.g. preprints, data, code, grey literature)
- Funders are accelerating the transition to open access, resulting in additional complexity for authors, publishers and evaluators

Real-world outcomes

- The research community is under increasing pressure to evaluate and demonstrate the real world benefits of public investments in research
- Increased competition and complexity is driving the need for advanced analytics that support strategic funding and investment decisions

Community

- Growing demand for efficiency and productivity is driving increased international collaboration, public-private partnerships and community interactions
- Decision makers need to track outputs throughout the research lifecycle, driving the need for improved cross-ecosystem workflows and networks

Open Access

Listed in Directory of Open Access Journals

Clarivate poskytol grant neziskovej organizácii OurResearch (predtým Impactstory), na zlepšenie technológie detekcie a rozlíšenie verzí OA pre WOS a pre celú komunitu.

Podpora otvorenej vedy s neutrálnymi, spoľahlivými a dôveryhodnými datami

“Open Science” is an umbrella term used to represent all forms of openness in the scholarly research environment.

Web of Science

Web of Science helps you find full text from quality Open Access journals and measure the impact of your institution’s investment in Open Access.

Journal Citation Reports

In addition to the profile information of journals, the proportion of Open Access content is also visualised.

Master Journal List

A searchable list of Web of Science journals, containing submission, Open Access and peer review data.

VIVO Services

We are a corporate sponsor of VIVO, an Open Source web application used to showcase institutions.

EndNote Click

Single click access to full text via both subscription content and Open Access.

Data Citation Index

Providing quick access to research data. We are also DataCite members, and endorse the Force 11 joint declaration on data citation.

Publons

Publons provides a free profile solution for researchers and reviewers. It is also pioneering the Transparent Peer Review.

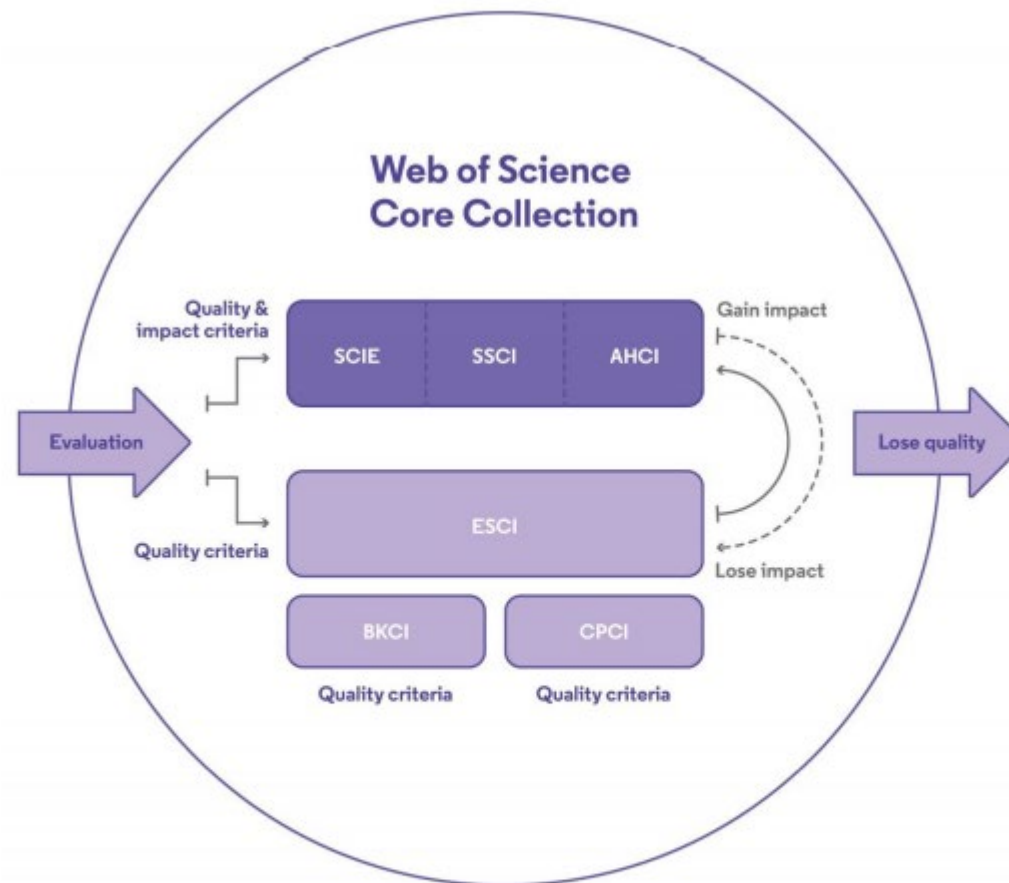

InCites B & A

Allows benchmarking and analysis of Open Access performance, across individuals, organisations, funders, publishers and countries.
