Programme

Bryozoan – Workshop

8th-10th September 2005

Biology Centre of the Upper Austrian Museums
J.-W.-Klein-Straße 73, 4040 Linz-Dornach, Austria

Host: Emmy Wöss
University of Vienna

Acknowledgements

I am particularly grateful to Gerhard Aubrecht, head of the Biology Centre, for the possibility of the realization of this workshop as well as Erna Aescht for her considerable assistance.

Furthermore, I want to thank

Uwe Humpesch, Institute of Limnology in Mondsee, for his highly esteemed and valuable contributions to the limnological part of the workshop and Thomas Weisse, director of the Institute, for his hospitality;

Timothy Wood, Wright State University in Dayton, for his considerable support during the pre-field trip at the site in Mondsee and for corrections of the English texts;

Norbert Vávra, University of Vienna, and Paul Taylor, British Museum in London, for their valuable support in the paleontological part of the excursions;

Otto Girsch, Atelier zeit.raum, for his considerable assistance in searching for bryozoan sites in the backwater areas around Linz;

Friedrich Schwarz, manager of the section Botanischer Garten and Naturkundliche Station Linz, and Werner Weißmair for their valuable information on Upper Austrian floodplain areas.

Thursday, 8. September

Day at the museum
