

“ Dating back to premodern times, marketplaces were community centres and hubs of activity. Merchants, officials, and citizens gathered not only to exchange goods, but stories - representing a multifaceted vision of what was going on in the community and the world at large. ”

Content & sources

- 5 000 useful resources for social scientists and humanists
- trusted sources from DARIAH, CLARIN and CESSDA, including:
 - DARIAH in-kind contributions,
 - CLARIN Switchboard tools,
 - CLARIN Resource Families,
 - CESSDA training resources & much more

Exploring, curating and re-using data

The SSH Open Marketplace it is also:

- an Application Programming Interface
- a Python Library and
- a set of Jupyter Notebooks

to easily explore, analyse and improve the (meta)data quality of the catalogue.

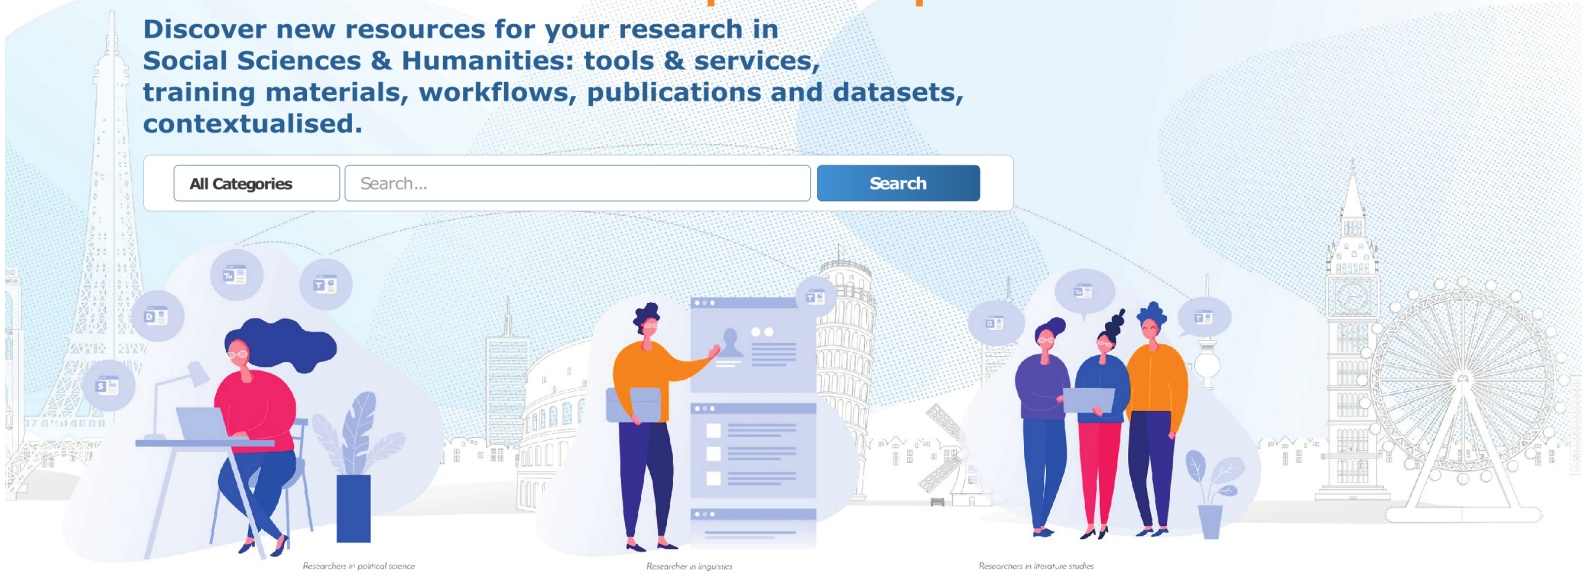

Context is queen!

- contextualisation and relations between resources support serendipity
- tools are connected to training materials or datasets
- workflows showcase resources and standards use based on a step-by-step description of real research use-cases.

What makes the SSH Open Marketplace an attractive and useful service for the community? You!

The SSH Open Marketplace is designed as an easy-to-use service to make the voice of research heard: be it via research tools, tutorials, research data or even complete workflows. A future vision of the SSH Open Marketplace includes the lively exchange about these resources, leading to a European research community moving together and bringing the standards in research to a new level through a joint curation of research resources for the common good. For this we like to count you in for supporting the curation and moderation work.
