The SimulAI framework: an overview

- At this stage of development, the library is intended to reduce the work involved in coding machine-learning applications and not automate the entire process.
- In other words, the user is considered able of handling the software in a lower level in order to construct applications.
- Nonetheless, the automation feature can be encompassed in due course.

The SimulAI framework: training process

The SimulAI framework: The construction of the machine learning model