Call for Chapters

Health and economic challenges among global conflict, climate change, pandemics, and energy crises

Tentative Book Title: Socio-economic challenges amid global conflicts, pandemics and climate crises

Objective of the book: To benefit students, scholars, and researchers of public health, epidemiology, international affairs, peace and conflict studies, health economics, and socioeconomic studies, as well as journalists and policymakers. We do not expect any political, antinational, or antigovernment statements or statements that may intensify any cross-border conflicts.

Tentative table of content: Authors are requested to submit chapters based on health and economic challenges in either of the following (other than issues/areas are already confirmed another scholar):

(a) Low and middle income countries (LMICs)

(b) War-torn countries (eg. Syria, Palestine, Yemen, Iraq, Libya, DR Congo)

(Afghanistan, Mexico, Lebanon and Ukraine confirmed by 4 senior authors)

(c) European Union (Spain is confirmed by Dr. Rashid)

(d) Sub-Saharan Africa (Ethiopia is confirmed by Dr. Berhe)

(e) Middle East – Gulf countries (confirmed by Dr. Yasmeen)

(f) East Asia (China, Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Hong Kong)

(g) Central Asian countries

(h) Middle East/North Africa (MENA) Region (Egypt and Iran are confirmed by Dr. Abdel-Rahman and Dr. Mosadeghrad, respectively)

(i) ASEAN countries

(j) Latin America

(k) Australia and Oceania

(l) South Asia (confirmed by Dr. Ritu, Dr. Ikram and the corresponding author)

Also, based on the present crisis imposed by COVID-19, ongoing global conflicts and climate change, authors may submit manuscripts on:

(m) Global energy and economic crisis

(n) Global health system crisis (confirmed by Dr. Rathi)

(o) Global unemployment crisis

(p) Global supply chain crisis caused by COVID-19 and currency devaluation (confirmed by a doctoral candidate)

(q) Global food insecurity

(r) Human displacement and epidemic crisis among displaced people

(s) Poorest developing countries that are in dangers of bankruptcy

(t) Implications for prospects for sustainable global development

(u) Social innovation in tackling global poverty and vulnerability

(v) Challenges of the countries where displaced people took asylum

(w) Inter-relationships between climate, pandemics, and conflict (confirmed by Dr. Sabyasachi)

(x) The impact of global crisis over drug and medical equipment supply

(y) The impact of US-China Trade war over global economy (confirmed by Dr. Ernest)

(z) Challenges for countries facing US-EU sanctions

Requirements/Description: It should have a structured abstract, introduction, and conclusion, along with other suitable headlines. Every paragraph should include a reference to present inflation, economic stagflation, halted development projects, currency devaluation, energy crunches, health and socioeconomic crises caused by ongoing global conflicts, the pandemic, and climate change. Please avoid giving complex equations, graphs, methodology, and other technical jargon. We need a chapter, not a journal-fit article. The language should be fluent English; it should be a 5000–7000-word chapter manuscript along with references. American Psychological Association (APA) should be used, and all references, info graphics (please avoid images of people and places), and other sources should be clearly cited by numbering within the text. Try to put 3 to 5 tables and info graphics with lots of statistics on health and the economy. A plagiarism report and a 100-word career summary of the author are mandatory along with the submission.

Deadline of Submission: May 15, 2023
