

QualiFAIR: Towards reusable qualitative data

Agata Bochynska, Kirsti Klette, Maria Dikova, Torgeir Christiansen
University of Oslo, Oslo, Norway
Contact: agata.bochynska@ub.uio.no

I was born in [REDACTED]. My parents were both born and raised in [REDACTED]. My father, [REDACTED], was [REDACTED] and my mother, [REDACTED], was [REDACTED]. They both lived in [REDACTED], on either side of [REDACTED], and there was no chance that they would meet each other.

QualiFAIR: making qualitative and context-sensitive data more FAIR

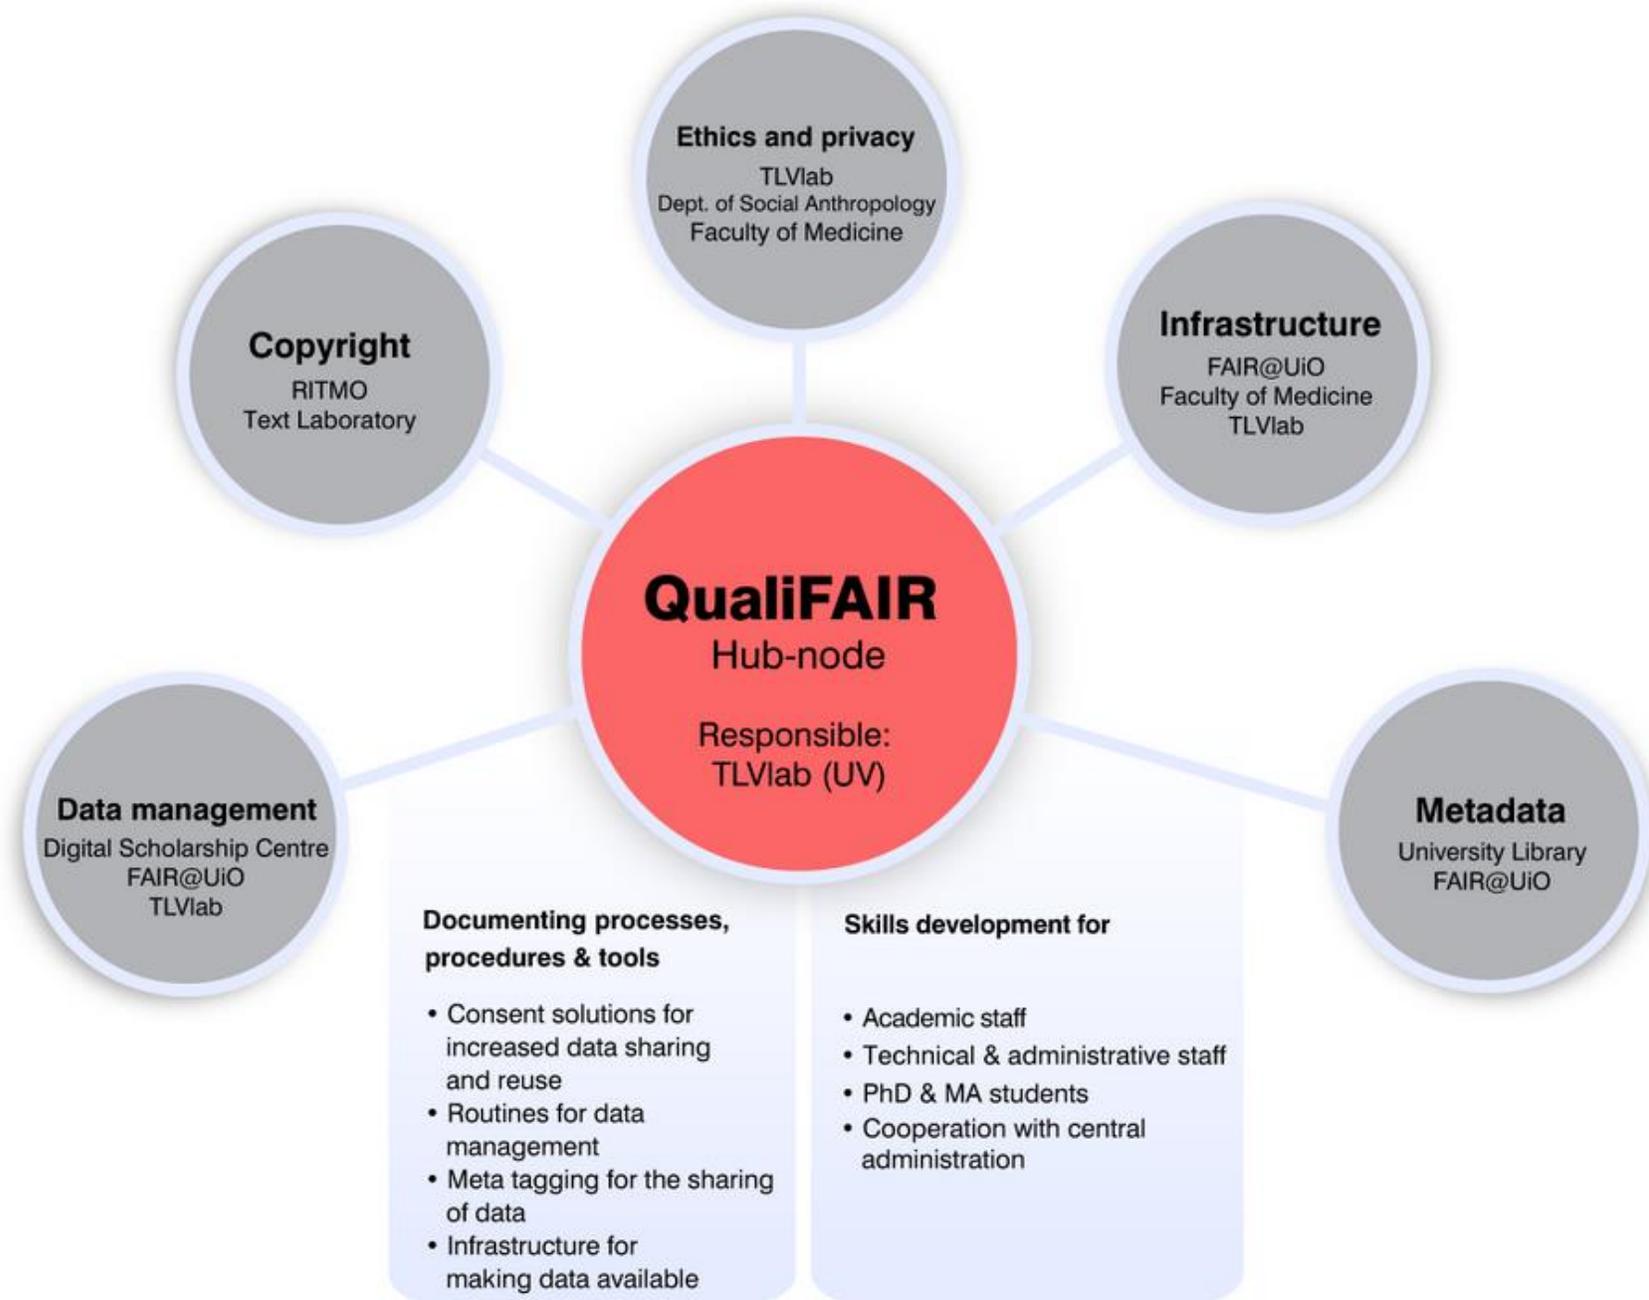

Collaboration

Academic staff
Administrative staff
Technical and IT-staff

Interdisciplinarity

Medicine and Dentistry
Social Sciences and Humanities
Education
Theology
Library and IT-services

Lesson 1:

Build a network of diverse actors involved with qualitative research across disciplines

Lesson 2:

Develop skills in qualitative data sharing and reuse through seminars and workshops

Lesson 3:

Involve researchers and their own projects as case studies for testing new solutions for qualitative data reuse

Lesson 4:

Create resources, procedures and concrete guidelines for making qualitative data more FAIR

Lesson 5:

Work with stakeholders to move towards new policies and solutions for qualitative data sharing and reuse

Future directions

- Integrate developed training and resources in PhD programs and researcher training
- Establish communication platforms for academics, administrators and technical staff across disciplines
- Focus on further development of guidelines and resources for data management planning, copyright, metadata, and infrastructure for sharing qualitative data

- ✓ Build a (diverse) network
- ✓ Help develop skills through seminars and workshops
- ✓ Create resources and guidelines
- ✓ Involve researchers in case studies
- ✓ Work with stakeholders on new policies and national solutions for qualitative data sharing and reuse

Visit QualiFAIRs website!

Agata Bochynska, Torgeir Christiansen, Maria Dikova, Kirsti Klette
University of Oslo, Oslo, Norway
agata.bochynska@ub.uio.no