

DIGITAL HUMANITIES

EXPLORE THE KB DIGITAL HUMANITIES TREASURE TROVE

Our data may just hold the answers to your research questions:

Come and discover millions of pages of content, fully digitised or digital-born and available for exploration and analysis (conditions of use may apply):

- over 9 million Dutch historical newspaper pages (Delpher)
- over 140,000 digitised books (Delpher)
- the Dutch Web Archive
- 1,5 million pages of historical radio bulletins (Delpher)
- medieval illuminated manuscripts
- and counting

Our KB Research Lab is a platform to facilitate your experiments with our data:

Come and discover the ever-growing suite of tools for digital humanities research:

- n-gram viewers
- topic modelling
- named entity recognition
- test data
- and more to come

Our KB researcher programmes can provide the opportunity you need to come and work with our data:

- KB Fellowship programme
- Researcher-in-residence programme.

Our Digital Humanities team is your guide to this treasure trove:

- Go to <http://www.kb.nl/en/digitalhumanities> for full details & links
- or send an e-mail to our Digital Humanities team at dh@kb.nl.