Abstract:

The aim of this paper is to description the nominal of predicate between two languages (Albanian – English). The purpose of the following discussing is to show that some noun phrases, namely predicate nominal's, do not seem to exhibit. What is considering the typical behavior of noun phrase? First, they do not seem to be assigned case. Second, they may not assign are roles in normal sense so that they are probably as Theta-marker arguments, unlike referential Noun Phrases.ⁱⁱ In Albanian language the nominal predicate can express with auxiliary verb (to be, have) and noun, too. "The predicate has the function of giving information about the subject …"

Keywords: predicate nominal, predicate, noun, verb, auxiliary verb, Albanian and English

1. Introduction

The purpose of the following discussing is to show that some noun phrases, namely predicate nominal's, do not seem to exhibit! What is considering the typical behavior of noun phrase? First, they do not seem to be assigned Case. Second, they may not assign are roles in normal sense so that they are probably as Theta-marker arguments, unlike referential Noun Phrases.ⁱⁱⁱ

In Albanian language the predicate nominal can express with auxiliary verb (to be, have) and noun, too. "The predicate has the function of giving information about the subject... The case of the predicate noun requires further clarification, as its correct usage always presents the student with considerable difficulty. The following rule should be remembered: The predicate noun always adapted with the subject in case and number, too. If the predicate noun stands alone or is augmented by an adjective, it stands in the indef. form as in the first sentence, regardless of the form of the subject." If, however, the predicate noun is augmented by a pronoun or noun in the definite form, it stands in the def. form (2).

- 1. Zogjtë dhe shtazët në përgjithësi janë frymorë.
- The birds and the animals in general are living beings.

Macja dhe qeni quhen shtazë shtëpiake

The cat and the dog are called domestic animals

2. I tha gruaja atij. Ti je burri im. The woman said to him. You are my husband.^{iv} Both of languages the predicate noun following the verb e.g.:

Unë jam studenti dhe ju jeni mësuesi im. (NP)

I am student and you are my teacher. (NP)

Kjo ditë kishte për të qenë më e mira e menduar. (ADJ)

This day will be the best day of thinking. (NP)

John's mother does work at University. (NP)

- Studentët janë ardhmeria e jetës. (NP)
- Njeri që flet si dhelpër pak punë kryen. (NP)
- Kush janë ata studentë atje. (NP)

Cila është Arta. (pronoun)

Ky libër mos është i atij. (pronoun)

The predicate is the same in Albanian and English. In English language the predicate can express with verb, noun, pronoun, it is same and in Albanian e.g.

John's mother does work at University. The man gave me a book^v.

"Arbeni reads a newspaper. Arbeni lexon gazeten. Arbeni and Teuta read books. (Compoundix subject) Tome and Arta read and enjoys books. (Compound verb) Tome reads books and newspapers. (Compound direct object) Those are the sentences that consist of only one main clause and no subclasses. The noun Anna, (Teuta, John, Arbeni) is the subject, where the sang (works, speaks, read) is the predicate"vi.

In this example, John's mother is the subject of the original statement; works at University is the predicate.

The predicate nominative is the noun following a linking verb that restates or stands for the subject. Typically, a predicate nominative has the same value or grammatical weight as the subject.

"Further, bare singular predicate nominal's are found in Dutch, Portuguese, as well as in all Balkan and MS languages. Some examples of bare singulars as predicate nominal's in several languages are given (...). Alb:

a. Nëna ime është mësuese.

mother my is teacher

My mother is a teacher."vii

The predicate noun follows a form of the verb "to be" it is not usually same in Albanian and English e.g.

He is an engineer. (Here engineer is a predicate noun because it follows is)

One fore is where the predicate noun renames the subject of the sentence.

Artani was the actor. (Artani is the subject and actor is the predicate of noun and it follows the verb "was" the past tens of "to be").

Arta's father remains the leader in sales for our country.

The predicate noun phrase follows a form of the verb for example in Albanian language:

Atdhetaria është punë e parë për çdo intelektual. Naimi është poeti ynë kombëtare. Fëmijët janë lulet e jetës. Kjo s'është punë e juaj. Agimi është djali yt? "It can be an NP or any other structure in nominal function"^{viii}.

The structure of the sentence between Albanian and English is different and it has the contrast in these phenomena of grammar e.g.

The simple sentence:

Kjo është puna e juaj.

This is your job.

The predicate of noun phrase (in simple or compound sentence) is the same with the function but different with structure.

When the subject complement is NP, it is the predicate nominative. Since predicate nominatives are NPs that follow verbs in the predicate, they look at great deal like direct objects.

Predicate nominal

In the sentence I am a student, I and a student are noun phrase that refer to the same individual. If the speaker in the second sentence /I love a teacher/ uses a transitive verb, I and a teacher refer to different people.

The direct object and indirect object are both structures within the predicate e.g.

S Predicate ↓ ↓ I gave Benit my dictionary. P IO DO

| S | | Predicate \downarrow | |
|------|--------|------------------------|----------|
| Beni | handed | Artas | the gift |
| | | IO | DO |

She always reads the book before breakfast.

S A P DO A (adjuncts-rrethanor)

I read the kids of story.

The function of the indirect object is normally realized by a noun phrase and only very rarely by a finite /kë, çka, çfarë, ku --- what, where, why, when/-clause etc. The direct object and indirect object are (can be) both structures within the predicate e.g.

Strictly complement could be used with reference to all those constituents that obligatory complement the verb. "Both of languages with this contrast in syntactic structure can make with noun the subject, direct object, indirect object and predicate" xiii.

The predicator complement can realize by the noun phrase e.g.

The boy resembles his father.

After a few minutes it began to rain.

Father suggests Tomin to see a doctor.

Could you help me to find this book?

The weather became warmer.

I saw her in the street.

We call him Jo.

If the predicate complement is realized by a non-finite clause containing a toinfinitive, the infinitive may be preceded by a noun phrase functioning as direct object of the finite verb, as in:^{xiv} Mother persuaded Mary to see a doctor.

Could you help me to move this cupboard?

In English language it is obligation to repeat the predicate and subject too, but in Albanian is not necessary to repeat the subject, because by the predicate we understand for what does the sentence has meaning. The sentence "The cat killed the mouse" we have the definite

The noun in the sentence can be direct and indirect object. It is same for both of languages. The direct object and indirect can make with noun, noun phrase, noun with preposition etc. The direct or indirect object is the second object in the sentence. "In both of languages the object normally follows the subject and the predicate" xvi.

Conclusion

In Albanian and English language the predicate nominal^{xvii} can express with auxiliary verb (to be, have) and noun, too. The predicate has the function of giving the information for the subject (...). The case of the predicate noun requires further clarification, as its correct usage always presents the student with considerable difficulty. The predicator is also one of the main functional elements of a sentence. It can be identified by the following main principles.
